'Renounce Force' Appeals Issued

(AP, UPI)

Almost simultaneously from Moscow, Washington, Warsaw and London yesterday came overtures inviting all nations to renounce the use of force in international disputes and take concrete steps to preserve peace in the world.

In a 20-page letter to President Johnson, Premier Khrushchev asked the U.S. to join Russia in signing a formal declaration condemning the use of force in territorial disputes.

Later, in Washington, Secretary of State Dean Rusk declared peace remained the most urgent business of mankind and invited the Soviets to break new ground in settling major east-west problems.

Warsaw, announcing the arrival of Premier Khrushchev on a surprise unofficial visit, was reported to be preparing a new Kremlin-backed move aimed at easing tensions in central Europe.

ARMS 'FREEZE'

Shortly before the Russian leader's arrival, diplomatic observers said the plan would include the "freezing" of nuclear armaments in the area at present levels.

There were rumors the Soviet leader would move on to other eastern European bloc countries after his Polish visit, for an exchange of views on Russia's ideological dispute with Communist China.

BRITAIN, TURKEY TOO

Copies of Khrushchev's letter were delivered to the U.S., the United Kingdom, Turkey and others, but the contents were not released.

In Ankara, Turkish Foreign Minister Feridun Cemal told reporters Khrushchev had sent a message concerning "an international agreement to solve disputes in peaceful ways."

In Washington, State Secretary Dean Rusk told a press conference the question of peaceful settlement of territorial disputes was, in general, the subject matter of the message delivered to President Johnson through the state department by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

Government spokesmen in London said it would be up to the Soviet Union to determine whether the note's contents would be released.

MIXED PROSPECTS

Describing the world situation as being "in movement," Rusk said the prospects for peace during 1964 were mixed.

He said the Western allies were undertaking an intensive review of the disarmament question and also discussing against the Berlin and German problems. This was being done to see whether there were any new proposals they might make to break the deadlock on these critical issues.

While expressing hope for progress toward peace, the secretary warned newsmen that some "highly dangerous situations" existed. He pinpointed southeast Asia in particular.

Humphrey

Minnesotan Tops Poll

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota has topped a U.S. wide poll of Democratic county chairman as the party's best choice for the vice-presidential nomination in the 1964 U.S. elections. Attorney General Robert Kennedy was a close second in the poll, taken by The Associated Press.

Commenting on the poll, Humphrey said "it is, of course, an honor to be associated with President Johnson, and it would be a singular honor to be with him on the Democratic ticket."

BOSTON (AP)—Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York said Thursday President Lyndon B. Johnson "is harder to beat than the Kennedy administration would have been."

Convicts Killed By Molten Tar

PRATTVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—An out of control produce truck careened into a prison work gang near here Thursday, knocking over a pot of molten tar which burned four convicts to death. The truck driver also was killed.

Police said the four convicts were covered with the hot tar and the truck driver died when he was trapped inside his burning vehicle.

Police said one other prisoner and a guard were injured. Witnesses said the truck was travelling at a high rate of speed when a car in front of it swerved suddenly into another lane of traffic.

TRUCK SKIDDED

The truck overturned and skidded on its side into the gang of eight prisoners, hitting a "tar pot" and hurling the scalding tar over the startled road workers.

State trooper A. O. Hamilton said all of the victims were apparently burned to death.

Lord Thomson of North Bay?

Long Has He Eyed Ermine

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Lord Thomson of North Bay, Toronto or North Bridge?

These were among the guesses Thursday as speculation swirled about the newly-crowned head of publisher Roy Thomson, the latest addition to the ranks of Britain's peers.

Thomson himself teased out a hint that his surname might not figure in the title at all.

Another Canadian-born press lord, Lord Beaverbrook, picked up his handle from the New Brunswick community of Beaver Brook. The former Max Aitken was created a baron in 1917.

Thomson was elevated to the peerage in the New Year's honors list. He told a reporter he was not at all sure that Thomson would be part of the new name, which must be approved by Britain's College of Heralds.

"In any event, I feel I have to consult my son Ken about the title. After all, he's going to have to live with it for a long time."

The 63-year-old publisher, who has said with customary frankness that he has had his eyes on the ermine for a long time, seems keenly aware of dynastic matters as he talks of his new honor.

A standard reply to questions is that "I'll have to talk to Ken about that." This applies particularly to questions about his citizenship. Canadian governments have tended to frown upon Canadian citizens receiving titles and decorations.

"His motives are dynastic."

comments The Financial Times, punching home the point about Thomson's tendency to bring his son into all considerations arising from the barony.

The meaning and origin of the word baron are said by Debut's peerage to be shrouded in obscurity. It has been supposed to have meant a hired soldier, a free man or a man equal to any other man.

A baron's coronation robes have only two rows of ermine. Barons wore merely a plain circle of gold until granted a coronet in the reign of King Charles II. The coronet is formed of six silver balls set equal distances apart on a silver-gilt circlet bordered with ermine.

This succession to baronies by writ is not limited to heirs male, but is vested in heirs-general.

Thomson has already acquired a coat of arms and his country home at Gerard's Cross in Buckinghamshire boasts a set of silver from Czarist Russia.

Possible titles might involve Toronto, his Canadian headquarters; North Bay, Ont., where he got his start as a radio salesman; and North Bridge, the Edinburgh address of The Scotsman paper with which he began his British invasion.

Speculation about name and citizenship may be settled in a statement Thomson plans to make shortly after arriving in Toronto Saturday.

Beeper Back to Bug Verbose

After a year of forced retirement, the electronic "Bug Brother" designed to watch over the provincial government's phone bill made its reappearance at 8:30 a.m. yesterday.

By 5 p.m. it had already created its normal quota of embarrassment, a suspicion and loud guffaws.

The device is connected to the provincial switchboard and makes an unnerving

"beep" at prescribed intervals in an effort to cut phone conversations to three minutes.

It took two public works officials a total of 16 minutes to explain to a reporter by telephone why the beeper was back.

Works Minister William Chant, who is sensitive to "beep" criticism, took 10 minutes and his deputy took 5.

The "beeps" crept back just a year after they had been discontinued on the order of a red-faced Mr. Chant.

He cut them off last January after a reporter telephoned to ask him to explain the Social Credit monetary theory.

At that time Mr. Chant warned to his subject and disallowed through 22 electronic exceptions for a total of 67 minutes.

The reporter failed to record the minister's views on Social Credit economics but he did write a story on the duration of the call.

Result: no more beeps—until yesterday.

The beeper had hardly emitted its first little beep yesterday before the fun started.

A caller from Government House thought the line had been tapped.

"You're not recording this?" he asked in alarm.

A short time later a news source outside the legislative buildings suddenly froze in mid-sentence and suggested a meeting with his caller instead of a phone conversation.

But the device really doesn't record conversations, public works officials assured everybody. It just encourages efficiency.

Mr. Chant said that from the time the beeper was silenced last January the government's phone bill—about $1,000,000 a year—had risen steadily and conversations were getting out of hand.

Phone costs have already exceeded the estimate and his department is going to have to dip into maintenance funds to keep the lines open.

Missing Plane

Mystery Signals Fan Hope

HONOLULU (AP)—Mysterious signals fanned hopes Thursday night that nine men aboard a missing four-engine military cargo plane that went down 730 miles west of Hawaii may still be alive.

Search plane crews said they have heard 5 O S signals at various times during the last few hours. However, they have not ascertained the source or location of the signals.

30 PLANES SEARCH

No trace of the C-124 Globemaster had been found by the 20 search planes in the area, according to the air force at Hickam Air Force Base at Honolulu.

The missing plane, carrying a crew of eight and a Navy man accompanying the corpse of a sailor en route from Japan to the United States for burial, apparently ran out of fuel.

REFUELLED AT WAKE

After a refueling stop at Wake Island, the military air transport service Globemaster continued its flight toward Hickam and was due at Hickam at 1:30 a.m. Thursday morning.

The air force said distress signals were heard in Honolulu at 10:30 a.m. and apparently were sent by an automatic transmitter.

ROUND-ABOUT REPORT

Earlier a spokesman said the round - about report of the plane's plight had included the possibility of survivors. The report came from the Federal Aviation Agency control centre in Hawaii by way of a control centre at Pachu, Japan.

Cyprus Agrees to London Talk

Pause in Fighting but Situation Delicate

CP from Reuters-AP

Nicosia — Cyprus agreed Thursday night to take part in a London conference aimed at solving the bitter dispute between the Greek and Turkish communities on the Mediterranean island.

The conference proposal was made by Britain, Greece and Turkey. These three powers will take part along with representatives of Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

The Cyprus government's agreement to the conference was announced as British Commonwealth secretary, Duncan

Sandys, flew back to Britain after his peace-making mission here.

It was learned here that the meeting in London will be held in late January.

Sandys spent most of the day conferring with President Archbishop Makarios and representatives of the hostile factions.

But the British diplomat made no statement before leaving.

The Cyprus government announcement said that after the opening session of the conference "a committee will be set up of representatives of Greek and Turkish - Cypriots, under British chairmanship, to work only 1 1/2 days in every two months."

In the whole Prince George area there was only one foster-home vacancy and the girl was placed there.

Four days later the girl swallowed the contents of a bottle of ink and had to be rushed to hospital.

Mrs. Moran had to return her to her mother on discharge with an admonition to hide medicines and poisons. Psychiatric help could only be obtained by charging the girl with incontinency and having her sent to Willingdon reform school in Burnaby.

"Four nights later," Mrs. Moran's story continued, "this child was found at 2 a.m., clad only in panties and brassiere, wandering in a residential area, so drunk she didn't know where she was. The mercury stood at 10 degrees above zero and the snow was reasonably deep."

The girl was put in jail. "The next day I phoned the Child Welfare Division in Victoria. In this whole province, I asked, short of Willingdon School, is there no place where this child could be assessed and supervised?"

NOWHERE TO GO

"The answer was no—apart from a two-week assessment in Crease Clinic if, perchance, a bed were available, and after two weeks, what?"

She said when a magistrate pressed her in court next day for an alternative to reform school she replied there was none.

"This is terrible," said the magistrate.

"I disagreed," she said. "It is worse. It is sick, sick, sick."

The case, she wrote, "made me flaring, roaring, just plain Irish-mad" and prompted her to write the letter.

"It was not an isolated instance," she continued, but was typical of what is going on all over the province.

"We have no psychiatrists, no specially-trained foster parents, no receiving or detention homes to aid us. We place children in homes that have never been properly investigated, we ignore serious neglect cases because we have no available homes."

on the whole constitution problem and the treaties of guarantee and alliance."

Makarios said he would like to abrogate these basic treaties although through the proper channels.

There was a pause in Greek and Turkish-Cypriot fighting in Nicosia, the original cause of concern. But alarm spread because President Makarios announced he will seek cancellation of the treaties under which Britain, Greece and Turkey pledge to maintain the island's independence.

Any such action would raise temporary issues more in Turkey, which reluctantly set aside its ancient claims to Cyprus, and went along with the treaty that made Cyprus independent of Britain in 1960. Makarios' policy also could provoke new attacks by the Turkish-Cypriot minority.

In Athens, the Greek cabinet held two emergency sessions and asked for an immediate meeting of the permanent council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris. The council met for an hour, its second on Cyprus in eight days.

At the United Nations, Cyprus representatives asked the Security Council for an urgent meeting today on the continuing crisis. The council met last Friday but adjourned without action.

Later, a spokesman for the Cyprus UN delegation said the request would not be pressed. Members of the 11-nation council were reported to have expressed doubts as to the need for a meeting at this time.

Informed sources in Paris said the NATO meeting was concerned with giving the council a full briefing on the Cyprus situation. Members from Greece, Turkey and Britain gave the council a full report on the tense island, the sources said.

Greece and Turkey are partners in NATO but long have been divided on the issue of Cyprus. The council is expected to call on all concerned to negotiate for a peaceful settlement.

ALCOHOLICS

Among her "urgent-visits" stack of files, she continued, is one covering chronic alcoholics whose home is a Mecca for other alcoholics social welfare recipients and who are rumored to have a legacy . . .

"If I had time to investigate I might be able to cancel social allowance. If I had time, and they were eligible, I might, perhaps, administer their grant. If I had time and if there were an alcoholism clinic here I might be able to move them toward professional help—if it . . ."

BATHFACTORY WORKER

A welfare official in Victoria said Mrs. Moran has for years been a satisfactory welfare worker in Prince George, but he declined to comment on her charges until her letter reached him.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said he will raise the matter in the House after the legislature opens Jan. 23.

It won't be the first time child welfare has been a topic for debate there. A major battle took place two years ago when former child welfare superintendent Ruby McKay resigned over lack of facilities. At home last night she declined to comment on the Moran letter.

Back of all the communal strife on Cyprus is the belief of the Turkish-Cypriot that their minority rights will be swept away by constitutional amendments proposed by Makarios. Most Turkish-Cypriot leaders say partition is the only solution. The Turkish-Cypriots are outnumbered 4-1 by the 468,000 Greek-Cypriots.

Lightning Curbs Advocated

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Civil Aeronautics Board is convinced lightning blew up a Pan-American jetliner over Elkhart, Md., Dec. 8, killing 81 aboard, and has recommended major corrective action to prevent such future accidents, it was learned yesterday.

A board letter sent to the Federal Aviation Agency on Dec. 17 recommended jetliners use only kerosene instead of the more volatile JP-4 kerosene-gasoline fuel mixture, and that devices to guard against static electricity and lightning be increased or redesigned.

Tons of Clothing Bound For Needy in Hong Kong

Needy children in Hong Kong will get more than three tons of clothing from Greater Victoria citizens thanks to the efforts of the navy, the Jaycees and the B.C. Save the Children Fund.

The destroyer-escort HMCS St. Laurent, which leaves Vancouver Tuesday, will deliver the clothing to Hong Kong while on manoeuvres in Asian waters.

Meanwhile, Victoria Jaycees are busy packing, packing, packing.

"They wired the Jaycees in Not even 'doubling the present staff in B.C. would be adequate," she claimed.

"If we could ignore our disturbed children and adults in the knowledge that they would go away fine and good. But, Mr. Premier, they don't go away. The jails and hospitals aren't big enough to hold them. The social allowance grants, supporting numbers of dependent people, spiral ever upwards."

"The group for whom I am begging help will continue to cost money, more and more money. So it becomes, does it not, a question of whether we will spend the money, but at how that money will be spent?"

She could bear her frustrations more easily, she wrote, if B.C. had a penny-pinching government in the welfare field.

"But, in fact, you are not pinching pennies. From where I sit (and I know I'm a mighty small cog in a big machine) money is spent lavishly, sometimes in an almost uncaring way."

Victims of Heart Attacks Must Learn Their Limits

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Do most people have a myocardial infarct in which the heart tissue does not heal completely? I had a heart attack 23 months ago. When I lift, use my arms or get emotionally upset, pain travels up into my shoulder and down my left arm.—R.L.C.

This isn't a problem of healing. Sometimes pain disappears promptly after recovery from a heart attack; sometimes it takes months, as you know.

In fact, means that a segment of the heart muscle has been damaged by the attack, from having its blood supply cut off. This area turns into a "scar." The rest of the muscle, of course, remains active.

When the pain (often called the "shoulder-hand syndrome") persists, don't think of it as not having healed. Instead, think of the pain as being a form of angina pectoris. And you can do something about it.

When the heart has been damaged, the muscle may not be able to do as much work as before. When too much exertion is demanded of it, it rebels with pain. And this pain can be reflected (or "referred") to shoulder and arm.

Learn to estimate how much exertion brings on pain, and stop short of that. Learn not to get too wrought up—for you already have noticed that emotional upsets are harmful. Various medications can stop or prevent much of the pain.

Some exercise is advisable, but to a degree that you can tolerate without pain or shortness of breath.

Calculate combinations of factors involved. For instance, digestion requires increased blood circulation. Hence exertion within an hour or so after dinner may cause pain, whereas the same exertion at some other time might not. And add, as well as you can, the factor of tension or emotional turmoil.

To some degree, most heart attack patients must rearrange their living habits. So be smart about it.

NOTE TO J.S.S.: No removal of the spleen is not a dangerous operation for a man of 68. The spleen is a useful but not a vital organ. Its various duties can be performed by other organs.

Guard Slain, Gunman Held

Nkrumah Escapes Bullets

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—President Kwame Nkrumah escaped another attempt on his life Thursday as a gunman fired five shots in a vain attempt on the Ghana leader's life. A security guard was mortally wounded but Nkrumah escaped injury.

The assassination attempt was reported made as the 54-year-old president prepared to leave his official residence, Flagstaff House. All five shots were fired at close range but none hit Nkrumah. The assailant was arrested immediately.

At least three previous attempts have been made to kill the African politician who led the former British Gold Coast to independence in 1946.

First hint of the new attempt to kill Nkrumah came in mid-afternoon when police suddenly rushed around the presidential residence at Flagstaff House. News of the shooting spread quickly. Ghana radio interrupted a program to broadcast a flash giving the first details. This was followed by an official announcement.

The official statement said: "An unsuccessful attempt was made on the life of the president this afternoon."

FIVE SHOTS FIRED
While he was leaving Flagstaff House five shots were fired at close range. The assailant was arrested immediately.

"The incident happened while the president was walking towards his car."

"One of the president's security officers was seriously wounded and has since died at the military hospital.

Atom Depth Charge Wanted for Navy?

OTTAWA (CP)—Talk of the possibility of acquiring nuclear depth charges for Canadian maritime forces has been revived within the defence department. It was learned reliably Thursday.

Discussion on this point is expected to become more prevalent following the New Year's Eve arrival at North Bay, Ont., of nuclear warheads for the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile.

Some sources indicated, however, that the government may be unwilling to extend its nuclear weapons policy beyond the present four nuclear carriers: the Bomarc, Voodoo jet interceptor, CF-104 low-level bomber and the Honest John artillery rocket.

No request for nuclear depth charges has been put before the government by the defence department.

A view widely held among the defence planners is that once

Joint Control Of A-Arms?

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa branch of the Canadian Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament said last night Canadian acquisition of nuclear warheads for the Bomarc missile is out of step with world trends.

Bill Harvor, acting chairman, said the government should explain its "curious performance" of saying the warheads are to be used under joint Canadian-American control, but apparently not knowing in advance they were to arrive in Canada New Year's Eve.

the nuclear ice was broken there would be no military point in withholding nuclear warheads from Canadian forces whose capabilities would be greatly increased by having them.

However, the political difficulties are as obvious to the defence department as they are to any member of parliament. The Liberal government has maintained that it signed a nuclear custody-and-control agreement with the United States as the means to carry out commitments made by the previous Conservative administration.

No Dueling for Defence Boss

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Arturo Illia rejected Thursday the resignation of Defence Minister Leopoldo Suarez, who wants to quit so he can fight a duel with the ousted secretary of the air force.

The president, a 63-year-old former country doctor, acted with surprising vigor in an attempt to head off a military crisis three months after he took office.

The ousted air force secretary, Martin Cabello, challenged Suarez to a duel New Year's Day, saying his "dignity and honor" had been injured. Illia had fired Cabello Tuesday because he refused to accept economy measures recommended by Suarez and the president.

Government house officials reported Illia was "very angry at all these goings-on"—an apparent reference to the duel. Duels are barred by law in Argentina. Suarez told reporters earlier in the day he had resigned as he could meet Cabello on the field of honor. Later Emilio Perotti, presidential press secretary, announced:

"The president has decided to reject the defence minister's resignation. He has expressed the fullest confidence in Dr. Leopoldo Suarez."

Castro Wants To Restore U.S. Relations

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cuban premier Fidel Castro said Wednesday his government "wished" for normal relations with the United States but he said Cuba never would renounce Marxism as a condition for this.

At the same time Castro said he felt "it was possible" that there would have been "an eventual normalization" between the two countries under the Kennedy administration. He said he was not sure what President Johnson "is going to do... about Cuba."

"It belongs to the United States government to take the next step in any move to restore normal relations," Castro said.

A Discordant Note

AMONG THE GENERAL international exchange of expressions of good will and reiterations of the personal pledges of peace-like intentions between East and West for the coming year a few perversely discordant notes have been sounded.

Not least among them was the announcement by the RCAF that Canada took delivery of its first nuclear weapons on the last day of 1963.

Thus was it that on the very day that President Johnson, as leader of the free world, and Premier Khrushchev, as leader of the Communist bloc, were trading messages of friendship and hope for the future of all mankind, Canadian technicians were busily themselves installing atomic warheads in Bomarc missiles.

It is, to say the least, unfortunate that Canada, whose United Nations representatives have always been so outspoken in the cause for peace and nuclear disarmament, should appear to many nations of the world at the start of a new year as being little more than a dissembler.

Had the Liberal government spent a little more time in assessing the wide implications of becoming a satellite nuclear power and a little less in trying to prove a somewhat invalid election campaign point, Canada might have been spared this embarrassment.

Talkative Teens

CANADIANS are supposed to be a rather reticent lot, by comparison at least with some other nationalities. It is strange therefore to find this country for the eleventh year in straight succession holding the world title for gabbliness—or so it was described in the news item—on the basis of the number of telephone calls per person in 1962. According to data just released, Canadians made an average of 613.4 calls each in that year; the second-place Americans only 556.6.

To make the record the more amazing, this was despite a greater density of phones in proportion to population elsewhere. The United States had 43.1 for every 100 persons; Sweden was next with 40.3 and Canada had 33.7.

We cannot accept the gabby description of course without proof that our telephone conversations were as long as those of other contenders for the dubious honor, and such proof seems to be lacking. The number of hours per capita spent on the line in the course of the year would be the only true and convincing measure of talkativeness.

It would be nice to cling thus to the supposition that the typical Canadian conversation was comparatively tame and to the point even though friendly; that our only reason for being more talkative was that in 1962 than Americans we were more talkative. In the whole is not so conducive to over-the-fence communication as the generally blamer cline to the south, and that Canadians generally are farther apart, fewer to the square mile, than their southern neighbors.

With some regret therefore must it be noted that population statistics for this country and the United States provide a clue that tends to damage this theory and indicate that perhaps we really are, on average, the gabblers.

Unless we are misled by these figures which do not cover the entire juvenile age-group, Canada led in telephone calls in almost exact relationship to its lead over the United States in the proportion of teenagers among its people.

Both Ways

IN HIS NEW YEAR'S message to the country Mr. Pearson cites the strengthening of national unity as one of the primary goals to which all Canadians should bend their thoughts during the year ahead.

In their growing sense of identity and accomplishment Canadians would take unity for granted were it not for the clamor of Quebec for not only a rightful place in the national sun but for extra special treatment on its behalf.

The prime minister said this goal must be achieved "while ensuring this unity does not in any way prejudice the rights, the traditions and the language of French-speaking Canadians inside our confederation."

In the abstract there can be no quarrel with this thesis, and national unity should be predicated on a fair deal for all the ethnic components of the country.

In view of the current trend of the Liberal government to bend over backwards to appease Quebec sentiment in almost any direction, however, there may be room for the notion that in reverse unity should not prejudice the position of the majority two-thirds of the nation, the English-speaking section.

Unity is not a one-way street, although many Canadians are beginning to wonder if the Pearson regime thinks it is.

Two of a Kind

THE TWO federal byelections in Montreal next month promise an intriguing problem for national Socras. Mr. René Caouette says his Creditistes will enter candidates in both the ridings vacated by Justice Minister Chevrier and Postmaster-General Denis.

That will be no surprise, but Mr. Caouette says his candidates will run under the straight Social Credit ticket "because we are the Social Credit party."

This puts Mr. Thompson in a dilemma already grown awkward since the defecting Creditistes were parliamentary precedents over his own, original, Social Credit group. If his half of the Socras claimants also enter official Social Credit candidates voters have a confusing pickle to untangle.

Yet not to do so will be tantamount to abdication and further acknowledgement that Mr. Caouette is the dominant "Socras" figure on the national scene.

Mr. Thompson will not be aided in his decision either by the probability that Mr. Caouette's candidates would outdraw his own. Perhaps he should consider changing the name of his group, which is perhaps the only way in which this dual Social Credit identity on the federal level can be clarified.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax..."

By TOM TAYLOR

BY Twelfth Night the decorations will be laid away and 1964 will assume the level on which alone we might pursue our endeavors for another 12 months.

It is meet that we should come down to earth, as it were. The highlights of living, mental and physical, are for special occasions only.

That reserves for them the patina of the extraordinary. And anyway, one couldn't remain emotionally geared to the tempo of the recent, lovely, Yuletide and New Year celebrations. That would stretch one's capacities beyond the limits of endurance.

The time has now come, as the Walrus didn't say, to pick up the threads of the past and carry on.

For life is a continuous business as long as we are spared to enjoy it.

Yet these bright symbols of the seasonal end of 1963 are a pleasing spectacle and the public display of illumination is a custom that is speeding with welcome.

Cities everywhere are devoting more and more ingenuity to street decorations, and when these are dimmed a process that may have started here as these notes are read they leave behind some measure of regret.

Happily floodlighting has come to stay, and we may still savor the evening light that buildings so illuminated provide for the adornment of the civic scene.

In my own pastoral area of Oak Bay this year the extension of the overhead colored bulbs through the "village" has been very effective. One felt as though one was driving under a canopy of gay splendor.

Until a colleague happened to mention it I hadn't realized that this fine calendar year of 1964 would have an extra day to enable it to get on level terms with the astronomical year, the leap that gives it the term once allegedly favored by the ladies.

One is a "square" I suppose even to mention such ancient legend, since the modern mind scorns a practice long outmoded if in fact it ever seriously reduced the marital ranks in non-Leap Years.

Just the same, in the course of our ancestral development there was a time when an act of parliament gave "mayden" lady of both high and low "right" full freedom to pop the question in a "leap year."

And fine any man who refused her!

Anyway what would social departments, clergymen, florists, catering establishments, et al. do if weddings came only every four years.

The social code would collapse completely.

The upsurge of 1964 brings to mind also that a new car licence plate is in the mandatory effort, and that, as usual, I shall probably put off its acquisition until I don't wait any longer.

For years I have been promising myself I'd give the car a New Year gift in the form of its new number at the first moment of time after the calendar was changed. I fear however I shall be as lagard in 1964 as I was in 1963, 1962, 1961, et cetera.

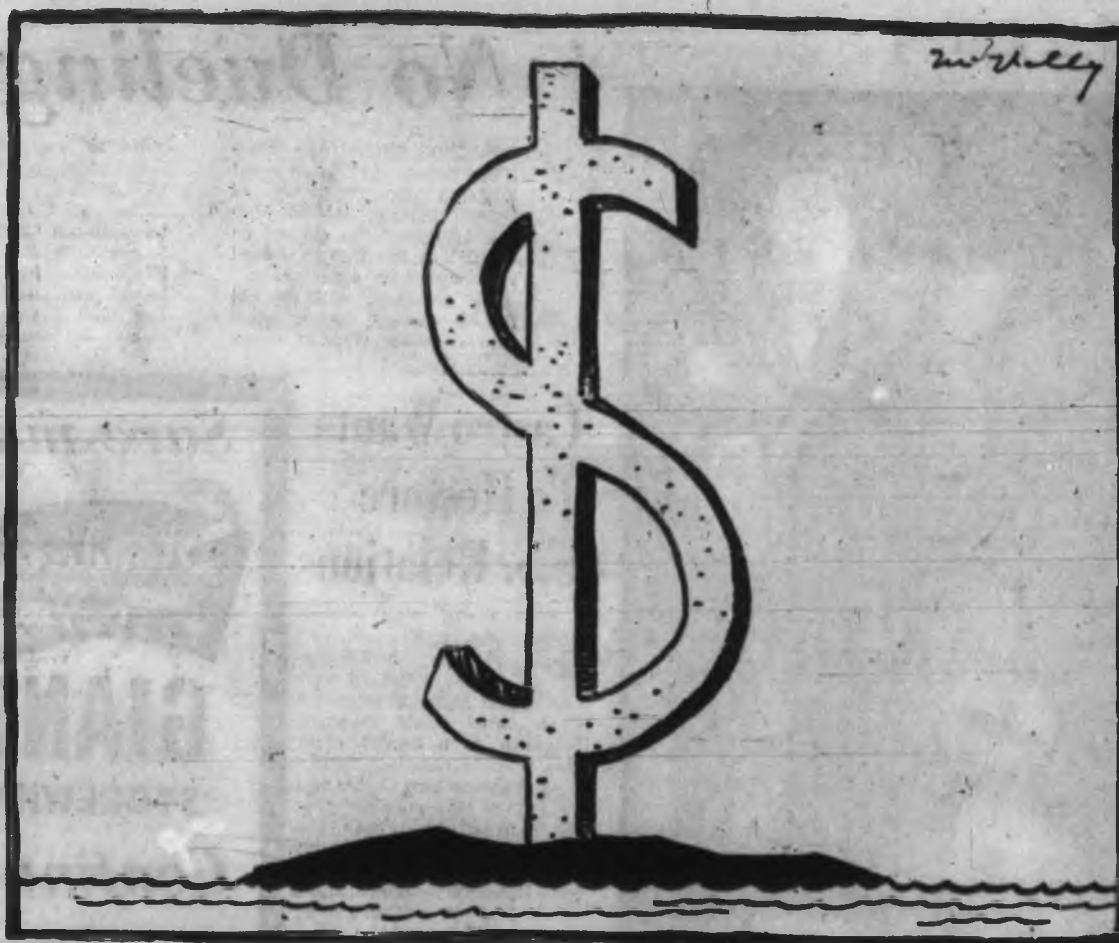

Perhaps it's a canny instinct that induces this lethargy, the knowledge I needn't pay out good dollars two months ahead of a due deadline.

For the sake of my reputation however I like to think it simply a case of not doing today what I may with absolute confidence do tomorrow.

The postal scale having slackened it is appropriate I should acknowledge with thanks the seasonal greetings sent to me by various readers of this column.

It is not possible to do this personally in every instance but their cards were received with pleasure and their kindly sentiments expressed therein deeply appreciated.

And, of course, reciprocated by yours truly in full measure.

A Washington View

NATO: Reorganizing an Alliance

By DAVID MACLAREN

DURING the week before Christmas the NATO Council had its annual meeting at Paris. By common agreement, the important issues were ignored in the formal meetings, so that an uninformed observer might have supposed that all was well with the West's military alliance. But the simple truth is that the 15 nations of NATO are more divided on basic concepts and strategies than at any time since its formation in 1949. NATO, as it has been known in the past, will not endure more than a few years longer. The only question to day is: "What form will NATO take instead?"

The nature of the Soviet threat is different today than in 1949, and hence different defence measures are needed.

In 1949 it was the Red Army that threatened to dominate the West Europe continent to the Atlantic. Germany, France and Italy were prostrate after a long war of attrition. The United States alone had atomic bombs plus aircraft to deliver them. The defence of Western Europe against the Soviet Union was deemed impossible without a guarantee of immediate American nuclear strikes against Soviet cities should there be an invasion.

This guarantee was made convincing by stationing U.S. army divisions in Germany where they would be in combat within hours of a Soviet ground attack. These divisions would serve to "trigger" a U.S. nuclear attack on Soviet cities. And this threat of an automatic nuclear response probably did deter Soviet armed aggression against Berlin and Western Europe for many years.

But times have changed at most every military assumption of 1949.

First, in 1964 the Soviet Union can attack the U.S. via intercontinental or submarine launched missiles having nuclear warheads. At a minimum, irrespective of which superpower strikes first, the U.S. could lose 50-odd million civilian lives. The governments of most NATO allies therefore no longer believe that the U.S. would sacrifice its major cities and their inhabitants for the sake of defending say West Berlin. It is less certain that even six U.S. divisions in Germany are a trigger-wire any longer. And this explains the European alarm whenever it is suggested that U.S. ground strength in Germany is about to be reduced.

Second, Europe is prosperous and thriving, and the traditional enmities between Germany and France that made two world wars possible have been replaced by the European Common Market. Political federation of all West European nations within a decade is a distinct possibility. The British have had a strategic bomber force small but equipped with "nukes"—for many years. France is acquiring a few low-altitude nuclear bombers that do at least have diplomatic significance. Germany has the scientific knowledge and industrial skill to produce weapon-grade plutonium and uranium within a few years if it so decided. It also has the specialized industries needed to produce missiles of all kinds.

Economically, the West European nations could afford to maintain a substantial and possibly effective ground and air defence against the Soviets in a non-nuclear "limited" war. And Britain and France have the "nukes" that might enable them to decide within the first few hours whether a Soviet ground invasion remains "limited" or will be "escalated" into a strategic nuclear exchange involving the United States.

Third, the European members of NATO are becoming more demanding as their bargaining power increases, and some are insisting that the U.S. share with other allies the decision of whether and how nuclear weapons possessed by NATO members be used in the common defence. To date the U.S. has been adamant that American "nukes," although in NATO countries for use in accordance with NATO war plans, remain in the legal possession of the U.S. and out of use until specific U.S. orders-to-employ have been received. Obviously, the U.S. does not want other nations starting nuclear wars that might destroy its cities, but this is a danger it may have increasingly to accept.

Until recently the official Washington attitude was that no fundamental issues divided the NATO allies. The publicists view was that most difficulties within NATO are ecological obstacles created by President de Gaulle. For instance, he has refused to have nuclear delivery vehicles based on French soil, and the main logistical line of communication consequently now runs through Antwerp rather than Bordeaux. De Gaulle, angered by U.S. refusal to share nuclear "know-how" and thereby reduce the cost of the French atomic program, easily recognizes a game that two can play.

A year ago, associated with the Nassau meeting between Kennedy and Macmillan, some Pentagon whizz-kids evolved the idea of a multilateral nuclear force (MLF). It was suggested that nuclear missiles be placed on surface ships that would have mixed NATO crews and officers. However, as it was proposed that the U.S. still have command over the warheads on board these ships, the MLF proposal has been generally unpopular in Europe.

Europeans are also dismayed by new U.S. strategic concepts announced by Defence Secretary McNamara. To reduce the possibility of the U.S. becoming involved in an all-out nuclear war arising from "incidents" in Europe, he has stressed the idea of "controlled response." This envisages short, discreet, and deliberate steps of escalation, and hopefully an ability to limit military actions to something short of an intercontinental nuclear exchange. To this end he has pressed for more NATO divisions in Germany, in the hope that a Red Army invasion could be slowed or stopped with conventional forces, supplemented by no more than front line tactical "nukes" perhaps, thereby avoiding a general war that would destroy major U.S. cities. The Europeans naturally see this "controlled response" strategy as a way to confine the battle to Europe and allow the U.S. to escape physical destruction.

The situation today is that, while West Europe and North America still need each other, West Europe must soon be treated as an equal. One way or another the U.K., France, and Germany can collectively have a small nuclear capability sufficient to escalate a major incident into an all-out war making the U.S. a Soviet target. But West Europe need spend far less on armaments for its defence if it can count on the U.S. nuclear deterrent to protect it. So Europe wants U.S. nuclear support but not a U.S. nuclear monopoly.

The reorganization of NATO is inescapably related to whether or not the United Kingdom enters the European Common Market (ECM). The coming Labor government in Britain does not favor an independent nuclear capability for that nation. But neither does it want the French to have one now, nor perhaps the Germans in a little while. It is conceivable that Great Britain might be welcomed into the ECM if it would agree to pool its nuclear knowledge with France and Germany. Then these three nations could together evolve a highly integrated command structure for defence against the East. Moreover, if each nation would specialize in making those weapons it can produce better than its allies, the ECM could afford a European defence force that would have military significance.

Such a European Defence Force (EDF) would not include the U.S. or Canada as members. But it would probably be allied to them. The U.S. would continue to possess an enormous independent nuclear strike power. But the EDF would have an independent if small nuclear force of its own that the U.S. could not ignore in strategic planning. The U.S. would hence be forced to consult more seriously with Europe.

An obvious temporary alternative is that a British government under Harold Wilson might refuse to be closely associated with other West European powers in their common defence. His government might remain outside a new European political system entirely. Europe would not become a strong "Third Force" so long as this situation continued and meanwhile the U.S. would continue to dominate an alliance in name only.

In the end, despite traditional sentiments resulting from common blood, there are many growing forces that will link Great Britain more to Europe than the old Commonwealth. The same alleged "special relationship" between London and Washington is wearing very thin. The Second World War was long ago, and a uniting Europe cannot much longer be denied. All this is known and discussed within the embassies along Washington's Massachusetts Avenue. When these truths will be recognized at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue where President Johnson now resides, is another matter.

For Drivers

Novel School

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP, from Paris

TWO former air pilots have started a new kind of elementary motoring school near Paris. The syllabus is modelled on the step-by-step thoroughness of flying training.

The idea originated with Col. Victor Veniel, formerly of the French air force, who argues that it is just as ridiculous to teach people to drive in a crowded city as it would be to give pilots basic training at Orly. You must have a private circuit, where pupils can learn to handle a vehicle and practise the equivalent of taking off and landing without endangering themselves or other road users.

Colonel Veniel has built an intricate serpentine circuit, about half-a-mile long and studded with road signs, on a patch of ground at Thiverval, 15 miles west of Paris. He raised the required $120,000 with the help of a former wartime pupil, M. Marcel Blondin-Blanchet, a businessman. Between them they have plans for opening another 10 such schools throughout France, and ultimately to revolutionizing accepted methods of training motorists.

Having learned to fly before I could drive, I was astonished at the slapdash way a Paris motoring school rushed me, with a few shaky notions, through my test 10 years ago. Eleven half-hour lessons around Montparnasse, never travelling at more than 20 mph, and suddenly I had the right to drive an Aston Martin at maximum speed in any kind of weather. There was not a word about engine or instruments—not even a hint to watch water temperature—and not even theoretical advice about life and death on the open road. Like most schools, the driving test and the licence were all that mattered.

Thiverval takes the licence in its stride. Pupils can take the test when they feel ready, but then come back to finish the course. More than half the pupils at present already have licences, but most have not driven for years, have never had the nerve to take out a car alone, or are women demoralized by the sarcasm of more experienced husbands.

The average course last 28 hours—seven periods of four hours each. This includes "ground instruction"—the highway code, how to change a wheel, the principles of the internal combustion engine.

At Thiverval in a quiet little valley a couple of miles from the western outskirts, the cars are lined up nearly like military aircraft. The pupils are taken methodically through the instruction manual, starting with familiarization with the controls and instruments, how to sit, starting and stopping. After each lesson the pupil is sent off solo to practise set exercises, the instructor following on foot or in another car to note mistakes.

They learn to control a skid on dry and wet surfaces, just as a young pilot practises recovery from a stall and a spin. There are lessons in double-clutching, and on using the braking power of the engine. In the later stages on the circuit, when instructors cut in, stop suddenly, and simulate other normal traffic hazards.

In the second part of the course the pupil is taken on to the open road to learn how to handle a vehicle at normal cruising speeds. In the third and last stage, when he is driving with confidence, he learns how to survive in Paris traffic.

It is a little more expensive than the usual cramming course. But at the end of it, you should be able to drive in a responsible, disciplined way. (OFFS—Continued)

Under Pressure

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

MOUNTING pressure by Canada's two major provinces in the tax-sharing field is beginning to be felt by the federal government.

There have been suggestions over the past several months (sometimes denied) that a Roberts-Lesage or Toronto-Quebec City axis has been established to counter the government.

Suspicion that this might be true were heightened recently by the surprising similarity of speeches given on succeeding days by Premier Jean Lesage and Premier John Roberts.

Mr. Lesage told his people he might have to impose double taxation on them if the federal government will not give him more money under the provincial grants system.

The next day Mr. Roberts told his people he might well raise taxes next year because of the system, which takes a lot of money from Ontario and gives back less.

Other premiers have complained of the system since the federal-provincial conference here in November, but these two make a difference.

They are the leaders of the two largest and most populous provinces, which contain almost two-thirds of Canada's people and just about as many of the constituencies represented in the House of Commons.

Their approaches to the problem are somewhat different.

Mr. Roberts has recognized the principle of tax equalization across the country.

This is the system whereby the central government collects taxes which are originally were collected by the provinces, then turns back a good part of the money to the provinces on the basis of need.

Thus Ontario pays a great deal more in taxes than it gets back in grants.

Newfoundland, on the other hand, provides far less in tax revenues than it gets back in grants.

Until last month the division was made by determining the average amount of money paid in taxes by each person in Canada and making grants to each province based on this average.

But Prime Minister Lester Pearson has changed that.

Now the average is worked out on taxes paid in the five richest provinces—Ontario and British Columbia—and poorer provinces are given grants so they receive as much money as if their people paid the same amount in taxes as do the people of the rich provinces.

It means more money for every province but Ontario and B.C.—less for them.

Mr. Roberts would like to return to the other system, on the basis that his people pay the most and should receive some added benefit even while sharing with the poorer provinces.

Mr. Lesage, on the other hand, bases his complaints strictly on the fact Quebec needs more money to catch up with other parts of the country.

The province was governed for so long by a man who kept taxes low by not spending anything (to ensure his reelection) that it now urgently needs modern schools, hospitals, roads and other public improvements.

He has a good case except when it is compared to that of the poorer provinces and he makes it plain he will get more money from Ottawa's grants an additional $150,000,000 a year as a starter but got only $43,000,000 for next year or the people of Quebec will pay more taxes and it will be blamed on Ottawa.

The pressure being felt here, then, becomes clear.

If the leaders of the two most influential provinces, Lesage, Jean and Jean-Jacques, team up and exert real influence on their people, they might out a government sitting in Ottawa.

It appears now they may just be trying that and Mr. Pearson and his followers are not looking forward with any eagerness to the next federal-provincial conference, to be held in Quebec next February or March.

Makarios to Blame For Cyprus Unrest

BACKGROUND

By CHARLES de VESTRUIL
From Nicosia, Cyprus

The independence of Cyprus as a republic within the British Commonwealth was never the design of Archbishop Makarios, present political leader of this island.

ENOSIS, or union with Greece, was his battle cry from the end of the Second World War until 1960 when he was forced to settle on the next best solution—complete independence.

He was not fooled by British imperialism, but by the unyielding demands of Turkey, who jealously guards her 20 per cent minority in Cyprus.

Is ENOSIS still his goal? Yes. I am as sure of this today as I was during the stormy days when I was a general staff officer in Nicosia and one of the British contingent who wrestled with the cunning of this soft-spoken, mild-looking Greek Orthodox priest with eyes you never really trusted.

It was a weary game because we weren't wrestling only with Makarios but with a popular world concept of brutal British colonialism and with the timid hesitation of one's own leaders and government.

If there ever was a flagrant example of British imperialism and colonialism in today's ridiculous myth, it's the republic of Cyprus. From the dawn of history, 1,650 years before Christ when the Egyptians ruled this island, Cyprus has never before been independent.

Other conquerors have been Assyrians, Persians, Romans, Richard the Lion-Hearted of England and the French Lusignans.

It was in 1571 that the Turks, after a cruel and bloody thirty-year siege at Famagusta, captured the island from the Venetians. This began the rule of Turkey and the Greek Cypriots have not forgotten the humiliation and cruelty they suffered under the Turks.

Then, in 1878, the Sultan of Turkey peacefully "assigned" the island of Cyprus to be occupied and administered by England. In 1914, at war with Turkey and Germany, Britain annexed Cyprus. But it was not till 1925 that the island became a Crown colony.

This resulted in economic stability, impartial law courts, the building of good roads, the wiping out of that great killer malaria, and for many years peace.

Then His Beatitude Makarios III began to agitate in classical manner for liberation from the imperialist British yoke and to dream of union with Greece.

At first Greece was not too receptive because British troops were helping her to fight Communist infiltration. But when this was cleared up, Greece began to back the archbishop with vulgar haste.

The Turkish minority were generally pro-British, and if they had had their way the venerable archbishop would have been swiftly silenced during the early stages of his agitation, and Cyprus would still be under British rule.

Many Turks made it clear that for the British to leave them at the mercy of a hostile Greek majority was a betrayal. Turkish Cypriots have always suspected the archbishop's motives. It is difficult to see how there will be real peace on the island under the present regime.

Now the proposed revision of the constitution denying the Turks the right of veto on legislation, has been resisted with death and maiming.

Is this latest Makarios proposal a first step in another twist to drive on and fulfill his dream of ENOSIS?

It is Turkey again, not Britain, which has brought the archbishop up with a jolt. Jets streak from Turkey, 40 miles away, to warn the Greeks. Turkish gunboats float menacingly on the Mediterranean.

Far from being brutal colonizers, the British today are absurdly influenced by those who yap the loudest. Surely they should cease paying so much attention to ill-informed world opinion and take swift and logical action, as they are now, to prevent further bloodshed.

Will there ever be another nation like Britain to show the world how the road to hell can be paved with good intentions? Meanwhile, one wonders if His Beatitude Makarios III will concede an inch on this lovely, strife-torn island.

UN Paradox

Canada Helps Pay Piper But Africans Call the Tune

By AARON EINFRANK, from United Nations

Kenya and Zanzibar have been admitted as the 112th and 113th UN member states. The Afro-Asian bloc now holds an absolute majority in the General Assembly.

The Afro-Asians have 58 out of a total of 113 UN memberships. The Africans alone (excluding white South Africa) have 34 seats, and it is they—not the Asians—who are the driving force behind most Assembly decisions.

Since the influx of new African States began in 1960, the Afro-Asian bloc as a whole has been demanding (and getting) more of a place in the UN.

With the Afro-Asians in the majority, the world organization can be expected to have a very definite Afro-Asian complexion in sharp contrast to 18 years ago when the UN numbered 51, mostly white members. The Afro-Asians numbered only 13 then.

Canada's position in the Afro-Asian dominated UN is paradoxical.

On one hand, Canada is being asked to pay more for UN expenses while the Afro-Asians are pleading penury and paying less (as witnessed recently when Canada paid out more for the UN-Middle East force while the Afro-Asians balked at paying their share).

On the other, Canada is being pushed off the UN's top councils. The Afro-Asians take all the plums for themselves (as witnessed by the defeat of a Canadian attempt to insure that Canada would have a chance to sit on the powerful Security Council).

The Afro-Asian influx also has made an impact on UN personnel. The top two UN officers are Asians. Secretary-General U Thant of Burma and his "chief de cabinet" C. V. Narasimhan of India. Both posts had been held by Westerners. Also, two Africans have been added to the Thant "cabinet," although Canada is not represented.

The Africans are also demanding and getting more jobs at lower UN staff echelons. The problem here is that the new African states do not have enough trained personnel to meet their own needs, never mind trying to send competent people to UN headquarters.

The result: staff efficiency—never very high anyway—is in danger of deteriorating even further as the Africans take every UN post they can get their hands on.

Canadian delegate Jean Chapdelaine asked: "Can the General Assembly expect member states to contribute substantially to the political, economic and social activities of the United Nations unless it is prepared to offer them a reasonable prospect of representation on the organs controlling these activities?"

This was the closest Canada has come to declaring that the Afro-Asian takeover cannot be tolerated.

Chapdelaine went on to cite statistics about Canada's heavy financial and manpower commitment to the UN. Canada is the sixth highest contributor to the UN regular budget with 3.12 per cent of the total.

For 1964, it is likely that Canada will pay as much as $25,000,000 in U.S. dollars, depending of course how much the Afro-Asians and the Soviets are delinquent in their UN assessments.

Canada like the rest of the West generally has to take up the financial slack of the other members.

Kenya and Zanzibar each can be expected to pay one-sixtieth of Canada's $3,100,000 contribution to the UN budget, and both countries probably will pay an even smaller percentage of Canada's contributions to other UN causes.

The 34 African states pay only 2 per cent of the regular UN budget. Canada alone pays 3.12 per cent.

But Zanzibar, with a population of only 320,000, has the same voting power as Canada.

Canadians To Publish Pope's Book

An English translation of the first of four books, written by Pope Paul VI while he still was Cardinal Montini, Archbishop of Milan, will reach bookstands in Canada, Britain and the United States this spring.

Publication rights were secured by the Montreal-based firm of Palm Publishers Press Services Ltd. The book entitled, The Christian in the Material World, was translated from the Italian by the Rev. Michael McManus, secretary to the apostolic delegation in Ottawa.

The book deals with man's rights and responsibilities in the use of material things and of present-day affluence.

"The problem of the material world springs from the fact that we are immersed in the things of this world. Economic prosperity absorbs us more and more, as though it wanted first to attract us, then to enchain us and finally to enchain us," Pope Paul writes.

In a reversal of the usual trend in which Canadian-published books are printed abroad, the Montreal publisher also is printing the British and American editions.

The second volume entitled simply, The Church, is currently being translated into English and will be published in the early spring of this year.

Vietnamese Lauds U.S. Jail Life

NEW YORK — Vo Thanh Minh, a frail, 57-year-old Vietnamese national who fasted for several days in a small unheated car in front of the United Nations had nothing but praise for American jails when he was released from custody. He said his fellow-prisoners "live a better life in jail than the Communists do" in North Vietnam or the "anti-Communist lords" in Saigon.

WOBURN, Mass. — Twins were born a year apart to Mrs. Thomas Fuller of Woburn. Deborah Jane Fuller arrived at 11:59 Tuesday night. Brother Scott Thomas arrived at 12:01 Wednesday morning. The twins weighed a combined six pounds, five ounces.

PARIS — Movie star Danielle Darrieux was named a chevalier of the Legion of Honor in the French New Year honors list.

LONDON — Earl Jellicoe, who as first lord of the admiralty is Britain's premier sailor, made this confession at the international boat show: "I get frightfully seasick."

ASCONA, Switzerland — Erich Maria Remarque, 65-year-old author of All Quiet on the Western Front who is ill at his home near here, was reported a little better.

LAS VEGAS — Singer Eddie Fisher said Elizabeth Taylor's attorney has gone to Mexico to complete arrangements that will end his marriage to Miss Taylor.

TOKYO — Soviet Premier Khrushchev called for the "peaceful unification" of North and South Korea in a New Year's greeting to Communist North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung.

BARTLEY BAY — Herbert Clifton, hereditary chief of the Blackfish Indian clan, has died at 91 in this tiny north coast fishing village 80 miles south of Prince Rupert.

LOS ANGELES — A federal grand jury has indicted three men for the kidnapping of Frank Sinatra, Jr. The indictment charged that Barry Keenan and Joseph Amato, both 23, carried out the actual abduction. John Irwin, 42, was charged with aiding and abetting the younger men.

ST. CATHERINES, Ont. — A former YWCA secretary who had worked for Ys in Halifax and Victoria, as well as here, Mrs. Doris M. Wallis, died here at 81.

HALIFAX — British Trade Commissioner H. F. Codling says "there is a rumor" here that Queen Elizabeth will be at Charlottetown for the September opening of the Father of Confederation memorial building, but "I know no more than anyone else."

CHICAGO — The average American will drink a half barrel of beer in 1964, according to David Stotter, president of Breweries Ltd.

BEVERLY HILLS — Barbara Barry, 16-year-old daughter of actress Bette Davis and Jeremy Hyman will be married in church Saturday although they were wed in a civil ceremony New Year's Eve.

VIENNA — Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai met with top Albanian government and Communist party leaders in Tirana on the third day of his visit to Peking's European satellite, Albania.

GOSPORT, England — John Lyman, a 23-year-old sailor, is on a two-day hunger strike because British navy officials turned down his application to buy himself out of the service.

ROME — Italy has asked France to extradite former Congolese Col. Alphonse Paganza in connection with the killing of 13 Italian airmen in the Congo in 1961.

OMAHA, Neb. — Earl Henderson was turning a sore heel and all because he wanted to really whoop it up on New Year's eve. Henderson, 25, dashed from his home at the stroke of midnight waving a .22 caliber revolver, which fell from his hands, hit the porch steps and discharged a bullet which struck his heel.

CALGARY — John Charles McMillan, mastermind of an $86,000 robbery in Calgary in June, 1962, has been sentenced to seven years at Prince Albert Penitentiary.

OSHAWA, Ont. — Mrs. Catharine Loreta Martin, sometimes referred to as the first lady of the Canadian stage, died at 79.

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle lawyer Eric Horvath said he has been appointed counsel for John Wasylchuk, 51-year-old Canadian charged here with murder and robbery.

TOKYO — King Hassan of Morocco has accepted an invitation to visit Communist China "at a date convenient to him," the official Peking people's daily says.

HONG KONG — Lactian neutralist Gen. Keng Le and pro-Communist Gen. Ming-keung have agreed that their two forces should implement a cease-fire.

BOON — France today rejected a West German demand for the return of Antoine Arnaud, right-wing extremist leader put on trial in France after he was kidnapped from Munich, West Germany.

OTTAWA — Conservative Party organizer Richard Thorsley discounted reports that Montreal Canadian hockey star Jean Beliveau might be the party's candidate in the Feb. 10 federal by-election in Montreal's Laurier riding.

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. — The Texas deer hunting season has ended and President Johnson's score during the holidays was two bucks.

Prisoners Live It Up

HALIFAX (CP)—The Halifax County jail, long criticized and once described as "offensive to the public conscience," now is reported to have been the scene of an all-night Christmas party from which 12 of the 16 prisoners were still drunk Christmas morning.

Sheriff Stanley Bauld said Thursday charges of breach of trust against two jail guards are being considered. The different floors of the 100-year-old jail, in which sexual relations between men and women prisoners were revealed in 1960.

Mr. Bauld said the prisoners were "quiet and sober" when the guards on night shift left, but when the two overnight guards were relieved by the morning shift "13 prisoners were in different stages of intoxication."

Financing Aided

B.C. Hydro Boosts Pipeline With Big Gas Contract

B.C. Hydro has contracted to buy additional large quantities of natural gas from Westcoast Transmission Co. and thereby help the company finance a 230-mile pipeline extension.

The contract will eventually involve purchase of 72 million cubic feet of gas a day and will nearly double Hydro's natural gas consumption.

Most of the gas will be consumed at Hydro's Burrard thermal plant near Port Moody. The plant's generating capacity is to be increased to 450,000 kilowatts this year at a cost of $16,000,000.

Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said the contract will enhance the economic feasibility of Westcoast's proposal to build a pipeline from Fort Nelson to Chetwynd, B.C.

Hydro will get lower cost fuel for the Burrard plant and for meeting peak demand on its Lower Mainland gas distribution system.

Westcoast, which recently was reported to have encountered some difficulty in financing its pipeline extension because of a market deficiency during the project's early years, is expected to have an easier time raising capital. The contract runs from Nov. 1, 1964, to August, 1968—the approximate date when Hydro's Peace River power project will come on line. Mr. Shrum said use of the Burrard standby plant will increase steadily until Peace power is available.

OTHER MARKETS SEEN By the time the contract has expired, it is believed, Westcoast will have found need for the gas in other expanding markets.

For Hydro the contract means a change of policy at the Burrard thermal plant. At present the plant burns fuel oil and gas. By terms of the contract it will burn only natural gas, provided the gas is available.

But large stocks of fuel oil will still be kept on hand there in case of an interruption in gas delivery. The plant is designed to consume either fuel.

'Pink Slip' Barrier Broken

B.C. Motorists broke through the "pink slip" barrier yesterday and can now operate their vehicles elsewhere in Canada with a minimum of red tape. New regulations, which go into effect immediately, provide for the issue of a national form of "pink slip" which meets motor vehicle financial responsibility requirements throughout Canada. The new cards will go out to insurance companies on request and will be available to motorists within a few days. Government insurance officials said yesterday they will replace the previous "pink slips" which all B.C. motorists must carry in case of an accident. The old slips were good for B.C. only and a motorist wishing to drive into another province had to get a financial responsibility slip covering his travel there. If he wanted to drive coast-to-coast he would have to meet requirements in each separate province. The new card will meet provincial requirements anywhere in Canada. The standard requirement met by the card is for $35,000 public liability and property damage coverage.

Boy Despairs, Suicides

BERLIN (UPI)—A suicide by a despairing visitor to East Berlin marked the holiday visiting season through the Communist wall Thursday as officials said no formal moves had been made to keep the barrier from being closed again at midnight Sunday. West Berlin police said a young West Berliner, apparently depressed over having to part with relatives in East Berlin, committed suicide on his return to the west sector. The youth threw himself in front of a train at the Friedrich-Strasse elevated railway station—the spot where Communist police check Berliners who cross the border by train. The youth was one of 95,000 West Berliners who entered East Berlin.

Why Has Ottawa Made No Case?

B.C. government officials are beginning to suspect that Ottawa can find no legal basis for its intrusion into the field of offshore mineral rights.

A B.C.-Ottawa feud over offshore rights has been simmering since the Diefenbaker government started issuing petroleum exploration permits covering B.C. territorial waters.

DOCUMENT CASE

B.C. officials months ago met with members of the Pearson government to document their case for exclusive jurisdiction.

Ottawa asked for time in which to prepare its own legal grounds for being in the offshore field.

Meanwhile, exploration companies who had only federal permits were quick to seek provincial ones as well, and vice versa.

IN SUPPORT

Yesterday provincial officials said no federal government argument in support of its position has been forthcoming.

"We are still patiently awaiting a stated case from Ottawa," said Mines Minister Kiernan.

REAL PROBLEM

"I think they are having a real problem finding one."

He said B.C. lawyers tried to find a case for Ottawa's position on offshore rights but couldn't.

B.C.'s case is that with certain stated exceptions, the province retained after confederation everything that it had possessed before.

Canada, B.C. argues, could only have obtained offshore rights on the west coast from B.C. and it didn't.

The province has asked Ottawa to kindly explain how it obtained the right to issue exploration permits covering B.C. waters.

Launching Slated For Jan. 11

The 51-foot fisheries protection vessel Surge Rock will be launched Jan. 11 at 11:30 a.m. in the McKay-Cormack Shipyards on Kingston Street.

Built at a cost of $62,000, the patrol vessel will join the B.C. federal fisheries fleet as a replacement for the Vancouver-based Beldie, built in 1928.

She will also be used in salmon management, herring spawning surveys and other work.

Mrs. K. C. Lucas, wife of the assistant director of fisheries, Pacific area, will christen the vessel.

No oil or gas strikes have yet been made in the offshore area so, for the time being, the issue remains relatively academic.

But if companies now in the field should make such a strike a lot of potential government revenue would be at stake.

B.C. is prepared to go to court over its rights under the terms of the Constitutional Questions Determination Act but still hopes Ottawa may just capitulate and make this step unnecessary.

New Year Starts With Bang

The new year started with a bang for officers of the Pacific Bay reserve naval air squadron, VC922, when they saluted 1964 with volleys from the squadron's miniature cannon, a custom-made non-weapon lovingly constructed for the occasion by the members' own hands.

The salutes took place at various levees around Victoria where the naval reserve fliers were New Year's Day guests. It was also a farewell for VC922 because the group will be disbanded March 31.

THOUSANDS VISIT

Other New Year's receptions drew thousands of visitors, predominantly male.

Callers at Government House topped last year's attendance of 800. Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes shook hands with more than 1,100 men and a handful of women, the latter members of the armed forces.

These figures compare with 1,500 in 1963 and more than 1,600 in 1961.

MAYOR GREETINGS

Six hundred callers shook hands with Mayor R. B. Wilson and Victoria city council at the Bastion Square temporary quarters.

Upwards of 400 visitors dropped in on Reeve A. C. Wurtzle and Esquimalt council at their municipal hall.

More than 300 called on The Most Rev. Romo de Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, at his View Street residence.

NAVY ENTERTAINS

The navy entertained at HMCS Naden war room, chiefs' and petty officers' messes. The naval reserve at HMCS Malahat held receptions in the war room, chiefs' and petty officers' messes.

In addition to the QOR of C's officers' mess reception, the sergeants entertained in their mess.

Bay Street armory was the scene of officers' and sergeants' mess parties given by the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) and the 5 (B.C.) Ind. Med. Battery, RCA.

Happy Start For 1964

On Exchanges

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market greeted the New Year on a strong note with the heaviest trading in six months. Volume, bolstered by heavy speculative trading, totalled 6,448,000 shares — the highest since June 14, 1963, when sales were 6,222,000.

The high — prices IBM stock registered the biggest gain of the day, up six points to 355 on 65 shares. St. Lawrence Cement A gained two points, B.C. Forest 1 1/2 to 24 1/2 and CPR and Eddy Match each 1 1/2 to 34 1/2 and 40 1/2 respectively. Advances of 1/2 cent to 1 1/2 cents on 13 1/2 and Canada Cement at 30 1/2.

Among metals, speculators were the centre of attraction. Consolidated Mogul rose 65 cents to $5.35 on 307,251 shares. Winchester-Ludger, gained 3/4 cent to 14 cents on 725,000 shares and was the day's most active trader.

Noranda was best among seniors, up 1 1/2 to 47 1/2. International Nickel advanced 1/2 to 74 1/2. Golds displayed a strong upturn with 1/2 to 1 1/2, Quebec 1/2 and 10 1/2 and Hollinger 1/2 to 29 1/2.

Western oils were weak with some down 1/4 and Great Plains 1/4 to 11 1/4.

Happy Start For 1964

On Exchanges

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market greeted the New Year on a strong note with the heaviest trading in six months. Volume, bolstered by heavy speculative trading, totalled 6,448,000 shares — the highest since June 14, 1963, when sales were 6,222,000.

The high — prices IBM stock registered the biggest gain of the day, up six points to 355 on 65 shares. St. Lawrence Cement A gained two points, B.C. Forest 1 1/2 to 24 1/2 and CPR and Eddy Match each 1 1/2 to 34 1/2 and 40 1/2 respectively. Advances of 1/2 cent to 1 1/2 cents on 13 1/2 and Canada Cement at 30 1/2.

Among metals, speculators were the centre of attraction. Consolidated Mogul rose 65 cents to $5.35 on 307,251 shares. Winchester-Ludger, gained 3/4 cent to 14 cents on 725,000 shares and was the day's most active trader.

Noranda was best among seniors, up 1 1/2 to 47 1/2. International Nickel advanced 1/2 to 74 1/2. Golds displayed a strong upturn with 1/2 to 1 1/2, Quebec 1/2 and 10 1/2 and Hollinger 1/2 to 29 1/2.

Western oils were weak with some down 1/4 and Great Plains 1/4 to 11 1/4.

Courtroom Parade

Violation of Suspension Nets Motorist Jail Term

Five previous convictions for driving while his licence was suspended brought a man a six-month jail sentence when he appeared in city magistrate's court on the same charge yesterday.

Henry J. Polier, 614 Bay, was also sentenced to five days each on charges of failing to show car registration and driving without headlights. His driver's licence was suspended for three years. The sentences are consecutive.

Court was told Polier was seen driving south on Government Street near Johnson man $250 in Saanich magistrate's court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Court was told Alfred G. Imeson, 4648 West Saanich Road, was driving south on Douglas at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday, and his slow driving was blocking traffic.

A check of police records showed the licence was under suspension. Asked what he had to say about the charges, Polier told Magistrate William Ostler he had "got all that fixed up."

"You got all that fixed up?" asked Magistrate Ostler. "The lights and registration," Polier answered.

"That is unimportant compared with the other charge," said Magistrate Ostler. "You are extremely fortunate the Crown did not choose to proceed against you by indictment."

"It is obvious you deserve the maximum penalty provided under a summary offence."

William J. Hamilton, 768 Newport, was fined $250 in city magistrate's court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Court was told Hamilton was driving south on Government Street shortly before midnight Tuesday when his car struck a parked car on the east side of the street.

Total damage to the two cars was estimated at $350.

Two Hurt

Two people were sent to hospital with minor injuries following three-car collision at Rose and Hillside New Year's Day. Treated and released were Paul McIntosh, 13 Jeddburgh, and Alastair Robertson, 975 Fairfield. Both suffered face cuts. Impact sent cars, driven by Robertson and Douglas Forbes, 8 Jeddburgh, into a third car driven by Russell Forbes, 1730 Taylor. Damage was estimated at $2,000. —(Robin Clarke)

Many New Records Set Here in '63

Business in Victoria generally followed closely on the pattern of 1962, but many of the fastest growing areas in new statistical records were set during the year, says a Chamber of Commerce year-end review.

The report credits the planning of business leaders with being soundly based and says they have resourcefully met about translating their plans into accomplishments.

A check of the 1963 voters' list shows a total of 20,336 names, down 116 from the 1962 total.

Fls. loans up to Nov. 30 were way down from the 1962 total of $342,064.54. This year they were $94,818.92.

Percentage of taxes collected up to Nov. 30 was 95.27 or $5,457,983.96, up $169,128.16 from the previous year.

Greater Victoria's population rose this year to 160,000, up

Texas Raps Navy, 28-6 Hurt Huskies Humbled

University of Texas proved its right to having been rated the No. 1 U.S. college football team of 1963 by trouncing Navy, 28-6, in the Cotton Bowl game at Dallas on New Year's Day.

Other bowl games in an afternoon of record performances saw Illinois wear down the injury-handicapped Washington Huskies, 17-7, in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena; Alabama kick its way to an upset 13-7 win over Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans; and Nebraska hang on for a 13-7 edge over Auburn in the Orange Bowl at Miami.

COTTON BOWL

Roger Staubach, great Navy quarterback, set a new Cotton Bowl record by completing 21 of 31 passes for 288 yards but he was continually under pressure from an efficient Texas line led by All-American tackle Scott Appleton and guard George Brooks.

Meanwhile, Texas showed quite a quarterback in Duke Carlisle, voted the game's outstanding back. Carlisle threw touchdown passes of 63 and 59 yards, scored one touchdown himself and also set a record—for total yardage. He, too, broke the old passing record with 213 yards, added 54 more yards in 11 carries for a total offense of 267 yards.

Loss of first-string quarterback Bill Douglas in the first quarter combined with six fumbles and three pass interceptions and the crashing play of sophomore-fullback Jim Grabowski was too much for the Washington team.

After Douglas' injury, the Illinois defence was almost impregnable when it mattered and the Big Ten champions, getting a field goal after a fumble with 18 seconds left in the first half, overcame the 7-0 lead Douglas had earned for them.

An interception set up the winning touchdown in the third quarter and Grabowski, who gained 125 yards in 23 carries and was voted the game's outstanding player, went over for the clinching major score.

SUGAR BOWL

Tim Davis set two Sugar Bowl records, one by kicking four field goals and the other by kicking one from 48 yards. His other three-pointers, accounting for all of Alabama's points, came from 46, 31 and 22 yards.

Mississippi also made a team record by fumbling 11 times in the New Orleans cold, losing the ball six times. Losers got back into the game with a fourth-quarter touchdown but missed the winning points when Allen Brown caught a pass out at the end zone—and on a heap of snow.

ORANGE BOWL

A 68-yard run by quarterback Dennis Claridge and two field goals by Dave Thiesen made it for Nebraska. Claridge's run came on the second play and Nebraska had a 13-0 lead by half-time. Auburn got to the 11-yard line late in the game but a fourth-down pass was knocked down with 85 seconds left.

Illinois fullback Jim Grabowski, embraced by father Stanley, grins as he admires trophy that he won as most valuable player in Rose Bowl. He gained 125 yards in 23 carries and on one touchdown drive carried ball 11 times before bulging it over. (AP Photofax).

Dozen First-Rounders Sign

NFL Lures Cream of Collegians

By The Associated Press

The National Football League continued to pass the buck to college football players Wednesday, signed much-pursued Nebraska linemen Bob Brown and Lloyd Voss and NFL teams now have contracts with 12 of their 14 first-round draft selections.

Brown, a guard, and Voss, a tackle, were signed after the Cardinals' 13-7 victory over Auburn in the Orange Bowl. Philadelphia Eagles got Brown's signature and Green Bay Packers lured Voss into the fold. Brown was the No. 1 pick of Denver Broncos in the American Football League draft. Voss was a second-round selection of New York Jets.

The signings enabled the NFL to continue to overshadow the AFL in the chase for top college football talent. The NFL has lost only one of its first-round draft selections to the AFL—Southern California quarterback Pete Beathard, picked by Detroit Lions, signed with Kansas City Chiefs.

ONE REMAINS
One first-round NFL selection still is not signed by either league—Texas tackle Scott Appleton, voted the outstanding lineman in the Cotton Bowl after the Longhorns' 28-6 victory over Navy.

The NFL rights to Appleton are held by Pittsburgh Steelers. He also was the No. 1 pick of the AFL's Houston Oilers.

The AFL has managed to grab off only two of its eight first-round picks—Beathard and Ohio State fullback Matt Snell, signed by the Jets. Tony Lorick, Arizona State fullback, is claimed by Oakland Raiders but Baltimore Colts of the NFL also say they have a signed contract from him.

The other No. 1 picks in the NFL fold are Indiana halfback Marv Woodson, signed with Baltimore; Tennessee tackle Dick Evey, Chicago; Ohio State halfback Paul Warfield, Cleveland; Utah State quarterback Bill Munson, Los Angeles; Minnesota tackle Carl Eller, Minnesota; Oklahoma back Joe Don Looney, New York; Pitt halfback Paul Martha, Pittsburgh; Louisville tackle Ken Kortas, St. Louis; Texas Tech end Dave Parks, San Francisco; and Arizona State halfback Charles Taylor, Washington.

The AFL has lost four of its No. 1 selections to the NFL.

Esks Sign Top Gainer

EDMONTON (UPI)—Dave Casinelli of Memphis State, the leading ground-gainer in U.S. college football in 1963, has signed a contract with the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League.

Casinelli compiled a record of 1,016 yards rushing last season but both the NFL and the AFL overlooked the 5-11, 210-pound fullback in their recent drafts. One report is that Casinelli was already under contract to the Eskimos and the U.S. pro leagues were aware of it.

The Eskimos also were reported after quarterback Myron Taliaferro who helped direct the University of Illinois to a 17-7 victory over Washington in the Rose Bowl yesterday.

Chiefs Can Clinch With Series Sweep

Crucial weekend for Victoria's Haida Chiefs starts tonight at Central Junior High School gym when they meet Vancouver Bakers in an Inter-City Basketball League game.

Chiefs and Bakers play a return engagement the following night in the same gym. Both games start at 8:30.

Double victory would assure Chiefs of fourth place—the last playoff berth.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

This isn't the nicest fishing weather, but right now there is hot salmon fishing in southern Vancouver Island waters... probably the hottest salmon fishing we will have in all of 1964.

It is also the time when anglers are getting steelhead in all Island rivers, but they are having to do some pretty good guess-work to hit the various rivers at the right fishing levels, as heavy rains are pushing them up and down.

Bluebacks (big grilse) and springs up to 15 pounds, and the odd one bigger, are being taken all over Saanich Inlet.

"It is the most consistent fishing of the year," reports Jim Gilbert yesterday after returning from a guide trip with 15 salmon, three of them blues and the rest springs to eight pounds.

"The salmon are biting off and on all day," reports Mae Hall.

"Bucktail flies, Tom Mack spoons and lake trolls are bringing in the bluebacks. Puget, Minnow-Tessers and Strip-Tessers are popular for the springs," she says.

The Narrows has been the hot spot in Finlayson Arm with 150 feet and one pound of weight a good combination for springs. The blues appear to be in two schools, one a school of two-pounders and the other smaller.

Gilbert reports Tod Inlet has cooled off as the bait moved out, but persistent anglers are getting some big ones there. Howard Pepper got a 21.8-pounder in Tod Inlet Friday on plug, 75 feet and Strip-Tessers.

He says main concentrations of fish are from Quarry Bay to the Stone House and the schools are moving back and forth with the tide. There are blues off Willis Point to McKenzie Bay.

The fish are biting at any time of the day, but early morning, until about 10, is best. After that there is pretty good scratch fishing with sporadic bites.

Little Kam Lures, small abalones and green and white bucktails have been good producers for blues, which are pretty spooky at times and require eight or 10-pound test leader, 100 feet of line. Surface, half to one ounce of weight and sometimes eight ounces of weight are depths to fish according to conditions.

If the blues are showing, fish the surface. If they aren't showing drop methodically to eight fathoms.

For springs fish early morning at 150 to 200 feet and planer and then go to 300 feet and planer or 150 feet and a five-pound trip weight.

Most consistent spring lures have been minnows without flasher and the new little Tomic plugs.

The fish are in little pockets. Keep trolling until you find them and then stick around that area.

Bob Wright reports Oak Bay fishing good, particularly in the mornings on the slow tides. Most boats are getting two or three fish up to 15 pounds off Discovery Island and Trial Island. Large strip was catching them, but minnows seems to be working better now.

Brother Fred hit into a couple of big ones at Pedder Bay at the weekend. One was too big for his net and as he reached for his gaff his line wrapped around the propeller and the fish got away.

Becher Bay hasn't been too hot, but they are getting fish along the log booms inside. The fish are deep and some of the patters float are using 80 feet of line and eight pounds of weight.

The springs are in Departure Bay and Nanaimo waters.

Steelheading has been fair despite the heavy rains. You just have to be able to pick your waters.

The Sooke produced in the high water of Boxing Day. San Juan and Harris Creek have given up some to those with the initiative to get to them. The Bear Creek road is now open.

Cowichan has been very high, but if rain holds off should be ideal for the weekend. Kokalah has been giving up the odd steelhead and so have all rivers when they have been fishable.

John Timmons reports some good steelhead fishing in the Gold and so far has been able to land all his guide parties into fish. There are steelies in the Oyster and the Tulum.

Pacific Area Fisheries director W. R. Hourston will meet with the Amalgamated Conservation Society in the HMCS Naden coffee room of the NTS School at 8 p.m. Jan. 13. This is a big step forward in the ACS campaign for more attention to sports fishing and it should be an interesting and productive meeting.

AN ATMOSPHERE OF CHILLY HELL

...J. B. Priestley

What may be the finest spy story ever written starts in the Star Weekly at your moon stand now. Famous British novelist J. B. Priestley called it superbly constructed with "an atmosphere of chilly hell." Graham Greene said it was the best spy story he had ever read. It is titled "The Spy Who Came In From The Cold" and the first of two parts appears in this week's Star Weekly.

THERE'S GOOD REASON TO GO MATINÉE

"Scalp retention, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M.D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He is sending a specialist here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here tomorrow

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness—and growing thicker hair—will be demonstrated in Victoria this Saturday, January 4.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison said that he himself will conduct the Victoria clinic. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday at the Hotel Sussex.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing me," director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

Offers No Cure-all

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver."

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth of the organization behind it. Harrison and his affiliates maintain treatment clinics in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico. And their staff trichologists regularly do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatment. Unretouched photographs made four months apart.

Satisfy 95%

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 per cent of our clients, and have records to prove it."

"But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and balding—by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's tried every thing. So he starts consulting himself with one of the old superstitions about hair: That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss—and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

Free Scalp Examination

See Mr. Harrison in person. Learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Sussex tomorrow between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Harrison's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. You won't be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.

City Entertainers Back From Hollywood Jaunt

Three Victoria entertainers have returned from a four-day trip to California, their prize as winners of a talent contest. Rino Elverhoy, of 35 Phillips Place; and dancers Glenne Smith, 2065 Goldsmith, and Janice Tooby, 5010 Hillarie Place, winners in Roy Gordon's talent contest, left Victoria Dec. 27 by air for California and returned Wednesday evening.

Also Mr. Gordon's guests for the trip were three Vancouver entertainers and their parents and the mothers of the Victoria girls.

They spent one and a half days in Hollywood but unfortunately weren't able to tour studios because everything was closed down for the holidays.

DISNEYLAND, RENO

They spent all day Sunday at Disneyland, then stopped overnight at Carson City en route to Reno where they had lunch at the Club and saw some of the gambling establishments.

Dining at the Mission Inn, Riverside, was a great experience for the visitors.

Two Men, Girl Open University

VANCOUVER (CP)—Simon Fraser University opened for business Thursday with two men and a girl.

B.C.'s newest university, for which a site now is being cleared atop Burnaby Mountain, opened temporary offices in downtown Vancouver.

In their new offices were Professor Ron Baker, head of academic studies, and Arthur G. Orr, superintendent of engineering services. Simon Fraser's president, Patrick McTaggart Cowan, is expected to move in Jan. 20.

First woman appointee, Joan Hewitt, is on the job as president's secretary.

In Hollywood they stayed at the Hotel Roosevelt and took a side trip to Pomona where Mr. Gordon had business to attend to.

LOT OF TRAVELLING

"I'd like to have stayed longer," said Mr. Elverhoy. "We did a lot of travelling while we were down there and I'd like to have seen more."

He thought Disneyland was "really something" and said no one should miss seeing the Mission Inn if in California.

With Policeman

Body in Trunk During Chat

MANSFIELD, England (UPI)—An electrician charged with the murder of a 21-year-old shop girl kept her body in the trunk of his car while he talked to a policeman and the vehicle towed out of a field, the prosecution said in court Thursday.

Prosecutor Christopher Burke said electrician Ronald Evans, 22, had admitted way-laying and raping the girl, Kathleen Rita Heathcote, Nov. 21. Burke said Evans put his hand over her mouth when she screamed for help and she lost consciousness.

BOGGED DOWN—Burke said Evans put her in his car, but the vehicle bogged down in a field when he was turning it around, so he went home after putting the body in the trunk.

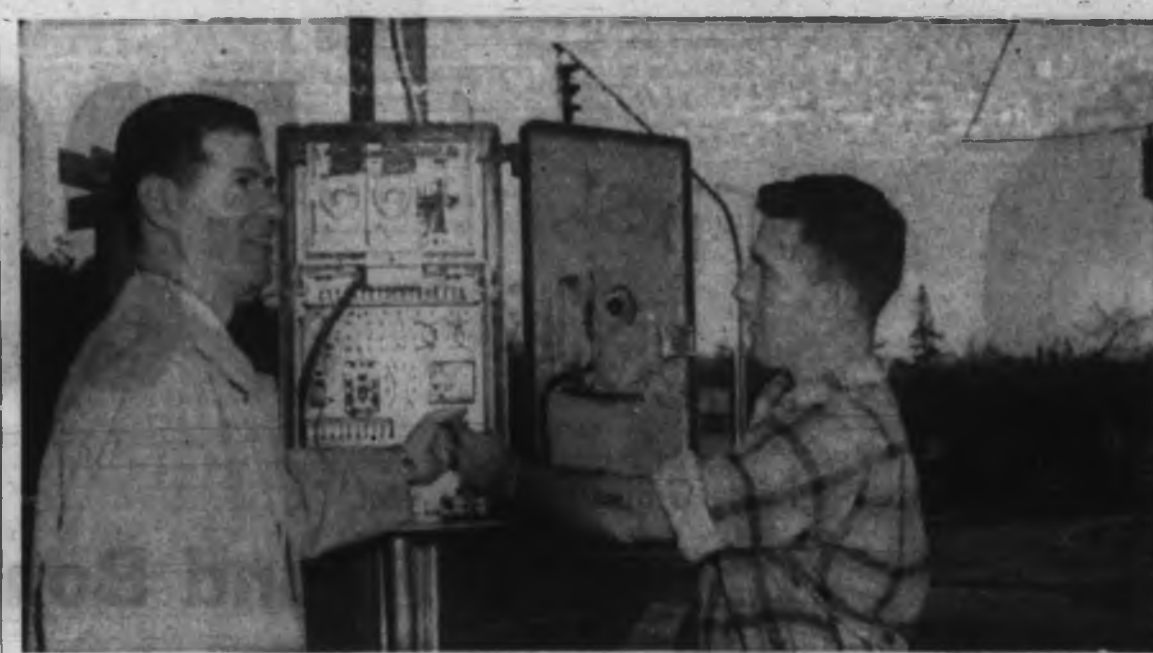

Evans told police he returned the following day and realized for the first time that the girl was dead, Burke said.

He closed the trunk door and while he was waiting for a breakdown truck, a policeman came along to see what was wrong. Evans simply explained the car was stuck, Burke said. Then the truck arrived and the car was taken to a garage still with the body inside, but Evans then drove the car home and was seen washing it.

Burke said Evans had admitted throwing the body into a dam that night.

Miss Heathcote, who was engaged, died of suffocation. A diver recovered her body Dec. 1.

The hearing is continuing.

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)

—Switchboard operators at the Danish state radio dealt with more than 1,000 calls from startled listeners after a fictional New Year's radio broadcast reported the landing of a space ship in the Pacific.

Some adults immediately scurried off to air raid shelters.

The calls came from as far as Oslo, capital of neighboring Norway.

Collision Injures Two

Two people were still in hospital last night following a two-car collision at Gorge and Tillicum just before midnight Tuesday.

In fairly good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with facial lacerations and undetermined injuries is Anne Vale, of Beaver Creek, passenger in a car driven by Theodore Verkalke, of Port Alberni. Two other passengers were treated for minor injuries and released.

In good condition is Robert E. Taylor, of Burnaby, who suffered head injuries.

Traffic Light Starts

Pushing the button which put Saanich's new traffic control light into operation at the Tillicum and Gorge road intersection is Coun. Hugh Curtis, left, assisted by lighting maintenance man Ken Patterson. —(Bud Kinsman)

Car Out of Gas

Family Dies in Desert

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuters)—Five members of a British family who died of thirst in a blistering barren country north of here were buried Thursday in a lonely desert grave.

Searchers found them early Thursday after they became lost along an arid track in South Australia last Tuesday when their car ran out of gas.

COUPLE, THREE SONS

Dead were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Page and their sons, Douglas, 12, Gordon, 10, and Robert, 19. They had emigrated to Australia four years ago from England.

Members of the search party said the five might have survived if they stayed near their car. Near it was a windmill where they replenished their water supply before walking for help.

AGONIZING DEATH

One of the bodies was clad in an undershirt. The others apparently had discarded most of their clothing before their agonizing death.

Four of the family left Marree, 400 miles north of here, by car three days before Christmas, bound for a working vacation in Queensland State.

The other son, Robert, had arranged to meet them somewhere along the track, which crosses wild, stony country.

The car was found abandoned by a rabbit trapper with a note on the windshield saying: "No petrol. Have water for two days. Heading south."

The five were believed to have died the day after Christmas.

Lakonia Owner

Passengers Took Tea Before Leaving Ship

LONDON (AP)—The situation was so calm while fire raged aboard the Christmas cruise liner Lakonia that some passengers sat down to tea before abandoning ship, the London head of the Greek line said Thursday.

The 36-year-old shipping magnate, John Goulandris, whose family principally owned the lost Greek liner, told a press conference:

"There were a number of passengers . . . who did not want man. Temperatures in the area were up to 115 degrees Fahrenheit in the shade.

The bodies were sighted from the air 45 miles south of Birdsville, Queensland, in an area known as Dead Man's Sandhills. There is no water there, and no means of livelihood for hundreds of miles.

to leave the ship. They felt the situation was very calm on board. There was absolutely, from what they tell us, no sense of immediate urgency among them to leave the ship. I understand that they sat down in the Campbell Lounge and tea was served."

Goulandris, who spoke slowly under obvious tension, strongly denied reports that there had been plundering of passengers' cabins by the crew while the Lakonia burned.

GRAVE CHARGE

"We have not had a specific charge from anyone about looting," he said, "but we feel very, very deeply for them."

Asked whether he had any idea why the fire spread so rapidly, Goulandris thought for a moment and answered:

"If you had asked me that two days before it happened, I would have said it was impossible."

FEEL DEEPLY

"I know that nothing we can say will compensate for their loss," he said, "but we feel very, very deeply for them."

Asked whether he had any idea why the fire spread so rapidly, Goulandris thought for a moment and answered:

"If you had asked me that two days before it happened, I would have said it was impossible."

SKELTON CREW

He said he could understand a fire getting out of control on a ship which was undergoing repairs with a skeleton crew aboard, but "it seems inconceivable" that a ship with 1,000 aboard could burn as it did.

Japan Police Outnumbered By Gangsters

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan has four major underworld gangs with organizations on a national scale, and the gangsters far outnumber the police, a National Police Agency report said yesterday.

At the end of October there were 5,211 small underworld rings, with a membership of about 180,000, about 50,000 more than the total strength of the police force.

The agency said gangsters with walkie-talkie radios were stationed outside the homes of police officers to announce police movements and 24-hour guards were mounted on the homes of gang leaders, some of whom acted like feudal lords.

People of Chelsea Jumping for Joy As Area Reprived

LONDON (CP)—The Bohemian borough of Chelsea was relieved from official oblivion Thursday to the cheers of nostalgic residents.

Originally, plans for a Greater London called for the Thames-side borough—long the hub of the capital's artistic life—to be swallowed up by its larger neighbor, the royal borough of Kensington.

NEW BOROUGHS—Now Sir Keith Joseph, minister of housing and local government, has announced that the new borough will be called Kensington and Chelsea.

The announcement follows a strong protest from Chelsea residents who resented seeing a name associated with Swift and Carlyle, Macaulay and T. S. Eliot disappear.

Sir Keith himself lives in Chelsea.

EVERYONE HAPPY—"We are jumping for joy down here," said a spokesman in Chelsea town hall. "Everyone is delighted."

The local government shuffle, which will enlarge London's boundaries and create 32 "super" boroughs, is to take place next year. Many old central boroughs with historic associations will be amalgamated.

CIVIC ALARM

Amid civic rumblings, the fates of Hampstead and Paddington have already been sealed. The latest list, completing the remaining, obliterates Battersea and Bermondsey on the south bank of the river, Finchley and Hendon on the north.

Wimbledon has been swatted out of court; Deptford, linked with Charles Dickens and outward-bound convict ships, becomes Lewisham.

Principals Win Boost

VANCOUVER (CP)—School principals in the city have won a 6.4 per cent salary increase for 1964. The results give high school principals salaries next year from $11,575 to $14,900 depending on the size of their schools. Elementary school principals will receive from $9,827 to $12,408.

Distance Won't Separate Them

NANAIMO — When Peter Sculthorpe next sails aboard the weathered Stonetown for a seven-week tour of duty out in the Pacific it will be less of a separation than in the past from his wife Ella.

This time the Lantzville couple will be able to converse daily—by Morse code.

Deciding that the 800-mile, seven-week period apart was too much, Mrs. Sculthorpe determined to do something about it.

First she studied Morse until she mastered the telegraphic code. Then, during the past year, she studied the big handbook for amateur radio operators.

Last fall she was the only woman in a class of 15 students in night school classes here for hams, as amateur radio operators are known. Final examinations were slated for the end of this month, but Mrs. Sculthorpe just could not wait that long. She sat for her tests ahead of time, came through the four-hour examination with good marks, and is now the proud holder of a licence—to talk by Morse.

The ham radio course is demanding. She faces another 10 months of study before she can talk to Pete aboard the Stone-town (or anyone else) by radio phone.

She doesn't mind. They'll be in touch his next trip out, and Mrs. Sculthorpe finds that code is often better than phone—the code comes through without the distortion that often troubles voice transmission.

Pete Sculthorpe is enthusiastic about the new development. He's full of praise for ham operators everywhere who make life so much more pleasant for people on lonely jobs like that of the weather ship. They're often the only means of communication with friends and loved ones for weeks on end.

Pete appreciates the advantage he'll have!

Island Family's Heirloom Off to Alberta Display

ALBERNI — There will be great rejoicing at the Old Timers' Lodge in Red Deer, Alberta, when a unique Christmas parcel, postmarked Alberni, B.C., is opened.

The mounted head of a calf buffalo is on its way to the Alberta city.

Mrs. Gertrude Hale of Victoria and Jim McCallum, Alberni, are responsible for its return to its native plains.

During the last great slaughter of the plains buffalo, seven animals escaped. Hunters came from far and near to search for them and finally they were shot in a coulee. Heads of the best adult male, the largest female and one calf were mounted.

More than 90 years ago, Mrs. Hale's father, the late Alex Currie, bought the calf head from the hunters. Mr. Currie lived at Swift Current and the trophy stayed with the family when it moved to Vancouver Island.

Mr. Siddall, whose sister is interested in the collection in Red Deer, told him the story of the two heads at the lodge while he was on a visit to the Alberta city last year. Then he visited Mrs. Hale's home in Victoria and heard the story repeated in connection with the baby buffalo.

He expressed appreciation for Mrs. Hale's generosity in turning over the family heirloom to be included in the Red Deer collection.

BACKACHE?

For relief from backache or that tired-out feeling I depend on—

He expressed appreciation

Distance won't separate Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sculthorpe of Lantzville, near Nanaimo. He's telegraph operator aboard weathered Stonetown; she's newly-qualified amateur radio operator at home, so they can talk by Morse code. Letters above set are "his and hers" call letters.—(Agnes M. Flett)

Around the Island

Log Jam Dissolved

ERRINGTON — All that is left of the log jam at Englishman River Falls are two slim logs, one above the bridge and one below, and a larger one jammed into the gully beneath the bridge.

Charles Darkis, park supervisor, said that clearing away the pile of logs proved to be much simpler than had been anticipated.

Early in December, a crew of four cut the logs into sections, piled them into the centre and set fire to them. Suddenly the pile-up collapsed and began floating downstream.

Heavy rains of the past three weeks, cleared away any rubbish that was left. The jam was caused by logs and debris washing down from logging operations upstream and proved to be quite a tourist attraction, as many people armed with cameras visited the park just to see the log jam.

PORT ALBERNI — An elderly pedestrian is in hospital recovering from injuries received when he was knocked down by a car in downtown Port Alberni.

The accident at Second Avenue and Argyle Street occurred at 10:30 p.m. on New Year's Day.

Injured was Paul Anderson, 106 Sixth Avenue, about 70 years of age, who received a fracture of the left leg and was also treated for shock.

West Coast General Hospital authorities said his condition was improved on Thursday morning.

NANAIMO — Over the New Year's holiday, Nanaimites were treated to the unusual January sight of pleasure yachts sailing in their waters.

On New Year's Day moderate northwest winds and temperatures drew Stan Fairbairn, Frank Cowie, Ernie Hardin and Lyle Falstrand, Sabot owners, into a race which resulted in Cowie winning by six minutes.

Sloops of a larger class, seen sailing in the lee of Protection and Newcastle Islands, were sailed by Bob Morgan, Nick Williams, Ken Guest and Norman Martin.

KYUQUOT — The troller Chi-Baba, owned by Kelly John and McCallum Sales, broke away from its moorings at the Indian village in gale force winds. It drifted out of the harbor and was later found sunk with just the tip of the mast showing at low tide, in the channel near Gayward Rock. (Efforts at salvage have so far been unsuccessful).

PORT ALBERNI — The Alberni Valley's New Year baby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Werner, 617 Gertrude Street, Alberni. He was born in West Coast General Hospital at 4:45 a.m. Jan. 1.

Lights Signify Growth Of Coast Communities

By SUSIE McCONNELL HERD
TOFINO-UCLEULET—Colorful, widespread use of Christmas lights in this West Coast area point up the manner in which the district has developed in the last 15 years.

Today every home in the villages of Tofino and Ucleulet is wired for electricity, most having every useful appliance, including television, and some even being heated electrically.

Paving of the Ucleulet-Tofino road the past year, has been a big improvement and meant much to residents, as well as to tourists. There is a small amount of paving to be finished on the road to Tofino, which is promised to be completed this spring.

MEK AT WORK
Employment is at a high level and the unemployed are working on winter works in both Ucleulet and Tofino.

Ucleulet has gone ahead by leaps and bounds the past few years, especially since the opening of the Brynner Iron Mines (Nanaimo) at Maggie Lake, and for a good many years now the payroll from the MacMillan Bladet & Powell River (Kennedy Lake division) has meant a great deal to residents of Ucleulet. Many employees of both Brynner and Kennedy Lake logging reside in Ucleulet—where both firms have company houses for a good percentage of their employees.

BOOM POSSIBLE
Tofino is an up-and-coming village, with prospects of a boom this spring and summer. Two new subdivisions are being opened up, and a dozen or more new homes are to be built as soon as the weather breaks, with water and other facilities already completed. This will give work to carpenters, electricians, plumbers and others; and will ease the housing shortage, which has been acute for some time.

Logging and mowing camps in the Tofino and Ucleulet areas have been closed during the holidays, and most won't reopen till Jan. 8.

Tofino is looking forward to the building of the new Tofino Consumers' Co-op store here early in 1964. It is to be built in a key position, with a commanding view of Tofino Inlet and mountains, a short distance from Tofino's main government wharf.

PROSPECTS GOOD
Prospects for miners and loggers are extremely good in and around Tofino the coming year. Logging camps at Calfone Mountain, Lowry Brothers Logging Co., have a good sized crew, and contractors are putting through a road. They have bunkhouses and a cookhouse for men.

At Bedwell River, Lakeberg Logging has a good-sized camp and a good payroll. This is about 15 water miles from Tofino. The C. & B. Logging is reported to be starting shortly on their logging operations in the Bedwell River Area.

Mining operations in that area are expected to open up early in the spring, weather permitting. This was a major mining area previous to the Second World War.

BUSY ON BOATS
Mines at Tranquille Creek are going ahead, others at Henquiat and other areas. The Falconbridge Mines have holdings at Lone Cone, and work is expected to be resumed there this spring and summer.

With spring near at hand, fishermen will be busy in both Ucleulet and Tofino repairing their boats, and the local shipyards and marine works in both places will be busy giving work to many skilled men. Fishing is still a large source of income here, and estimated value of the trollers and seiners in the Ucleulet-Tofino area, along with their equipment, is about $1,000,000.

Tofino crabs have become famous in recent years and recently an oyster plant has opened in Tofino.

Tofino's new municipal building, completed a little over a year ago, houses municipal hall, library, firehall and RCMP station, and firemen's recreation hall.

PAVING HELPS
Paving of the main streets inside Tofino village, and the new fluorescent street lights, have been a big improvement. Tofino has modern up-to-date hospital, Tofino General.

Ucleulet has grown tremendously, with new houses, apartment blocks, an addition to the Ucleulet-Tofino secondary school, new oil docks, fish docks, a new Ucleulet Consumers Co-op.

Ucleulet and Tofino villages are proud of advances made in the past few years, and the Port Alberni-Tofino road has added greatly as it has made it now possible to get mail and freight in and out daily.

Ucleulet has piped-in TV and has had for the past couple of years, so that residents can get a choice of stations. Tofino has had piped-in TV only recently, and it is expected to have the hook-up completed any day now, so that we here will also have a choice of stations.

FAMED BEACH
Progress is being made at world-famous Long Beach, where new homes of ultra modern design and every convenience have recently been built. A modern store, residence and gas station, at the Wickanishish end of Long Beach was completed this year.

One of the West Coast's most popular beaches, with its silver sand and 11½ miles of silver sand is certainly one of the outstanding attractions on the coast.

The wants of the travelling public are well looked after at Long Beach, with its several well-known resorts.

Opening of the Green Point campsite by the government a few years ago was a wonderful thing for the area, and a great convenience for tourists, and it has been most popular ever since it was built.

Traffic Toll Down in '63

Car accidents took the lives of 20 people south of the Malahat during 1963, falling far short of 1962's record 30 deaths.

Half the accidents occurred in the city of Victoria, with six in Saanich and the rest in RCMP territory.

The year started badly, with two fatal accidents Jan. 1. The first was a two-car collision at the Trans-Canada Highway. A pedestrian was hit by a car at Bay and Richmond later the same day, and died three days later.

February saw two deaths: one a pedestrian struck by a car Feb. 9 near Sidney; the other a boy knocked from his bicycle on Admirals Road Feb. 28.

March was the worst month, with five people killed. The first was an elderly pedestrian who died 11 days after she was struck by a car at Cook and Oxford March 3.

Double fatalities accounted for the other four deaths in March. Two people died as the result of a car hitting a wall at Douglas and Blanshard March 10, and two others died March 30 when a car hit a rock wall on Interurban Road and overturned in a ditch.

There were no deaths recorded in April.

HEAD-ON CRASH

A head-on crash with a rock wall at the Malahat summit May 5; the other when a woman was struck by a car May 18 while walking on Shelbourne.

A youth who died in a two-car collision at Maple and Talmie June 14 was that month's only fatality.

A man died July 3 after being involved in a two-car collision at Cook and Fort June 28.

ONE IN AUGUST

A man who died following an accident Aug. 25 near Helmcken and Trans-Canada Highway was August's only traffic fatality.

An elderly woman died Sept. 4 after she was struck by a bicycle at Hillside and Graham, and a five-year-old girl was killed when she rode her tricycle into the side of a moving truck at Superior and Oswego Sept. 12. A woman who was struck by a hit-run car on Trans-Canada at Burnside Sept. 14 was the month's third fatality.

TWO-CAR CRASH

A man who was involved in a two-car collision on Fort Street Nov. 11 died two weeks later, to become November's first traffic fatality. A man whose car went out of control on Esquimalt Road and struck a railroad boxcar died Nov. 26—three days after the accident.

December, last year's worst month, saw only one traffic death during 1963, when a woman was struck by a car near Cook and Burdett Dec. 18.

Firm Plans Two Tour Ships

The waters of Victoria's inner harbor this summer will be killed by the paddles of two sternwheelers. Instead of one as announced earlier.

Ernest Warner, president of Yukon Queen Tours Ltd., said the company's original plan to put an authentic model sternwheeler into the tourist business next summer had met with such enthusiasm that a second vessel is to be built to speed up the service.

Both ships, costing about $50,000 each, will be built at the yard of McKay-Cormack, and they will be ready by May 24.

Mr. Warner who is also president of McKay-Cormack Holdings Ltd., said his company owned 60 per cent of the shares of Yukon Queen Tours Ltd.

Cable TV Man Thinks:

Freeze Won't Hit Here

Cable television in Victoria probably will not be affected by the federal government's freeze on applications for cable television licences beaming U.S.

programs to Canadian homes, manager Leslie Curran of Victoria Cable-Vision said last night.

The freeze was put on by the location of cars which must temporarily go off the air, thus avoiding any confusion in the dispatching of cars.

"We are starting with only six code signals," said Chief Gregory, "and so far it is working out well. The number of modified messages will be increased as the need arises."

He said under the new system a log will be kept of the three other municipal police chiefs agreed to follow the same system.

New Town Planned For Tip of Island

43 Homes, 10 Stores In Initial Phase

By JACK FRY

Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd. has applied to the provincial government for permission to buy 500 acres of land for development of what might become the largest community on northern Vancouver Island.

Construction of 43 homes and 10 stores in the initial phase of development may start as early as June, a company spokesman said yesterday.

The 500 acres—sit Rumble Beach, about midway between Rayonier's $40,000,000 pulp mill at Port Alice and Jeune Landing—will be classed as a public townsite and property will be made available to private purchasers.

The company has extended an invitation for business firms to locate there.

"We hope to encourage such services as restaurants, dry cleaners and butcher shops. We also hope to have contractors operating up there rather than by long distance," said the spokesman.

Impossible to Buy

With the exception of a small public townsite development by Rayonier adjacent to its logging operation at Port McNeill, on the east coast, it is nearly impossible for private persons to buy property anywhere on the northern half of Vancouver Island.

Most of the northern portion of the island is under forest reserve because of the provincial government's policy of sustained yield forest operation, and special regulations have to be invoked to lift the land out of reserve.

A few small communities, however, were settled prior to the sustained yield policy, in the early days when timber was not considered such a valuable natural resource.

Port Alice, where 1,000 people live in 180 company-owned homes built around the mill, will remain in existence but is expected to diminish in importance as the new town grows some 3½ miles to the north, on the eastern bank of Neerouson Arm, near the northwest tip of Vancouver Island.

It is understood that the provincial highways department will build a road 5½ miles long from Port Alice to Jeune Landing, running through the new coastal community at Rumble Beach.

Preliminary Work

Gordon Draesaka of Vancouver, vice-president in charge of administration for Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Limited, said yesterday that the firm appropriated $155,000 towards preliminary development of Rumble Beach, including clearing, subdivision and installation of water and sewage systems.

Community Planning Consultants Ltd. of Vancouver has prepared a development plan to insure that the new townsite will be well laid out and meet government regulations, he said.

Three-quarters of the initial townsite development area has been cleared and the remainder will be cleared within the next few weeks.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has agreed in principle to supply mortgage money for the new development, subject to certain guarantees, and tenders will be called for water and sewage system installations as soon as CMHC approval is received from the plans submitted, said Mrs. Draesaka.

A highways department location crew is now working in the area and it is believed that construction of the new road—another major breakthrough in opening the island's north to transportation—will be started in February.

Power Distribution

B.C. Hydro will be asked in June to install a power distribution system to the new town.

The new townsite is being established for the benefit of company employees who are not able to bring their families to the Port Alice company town.

Some 250 employees are now living in bunkhouses in Port Alice, two-thirds of whom may have families elsewhere on Vancouver Island or the Lower Mainland.

"This will not be an overnight revolution... but a number of men living in bunkhouses may want to build homes here and send for their families," the spokesman said.

"We expect an increase in the influx of families and we are anxious for business people to open stores here."

Rayonier, which expects to have a $2,000,000 expansion of its Port Alice mill completed within the next two or three months, would like to get out of the company townsite business and let private owners run their own community, which even at this early stage shows every promise of becoming the largest on northern Vancouver Island.

Tides, Storm Defied By Span Workers

Crews which were forced to stop work on Harris Cove bridge near Port Renfrew on Dec. 31 because of storms and high tide, resumed work yesterday although storms were still threatening the washed out bridge.

The men quit work at noon on Dec. 31 and took a chance on leaving their priedriver on the bridge which was wobbling from the heavy surge pounding underneath.

Between five and six inches of rain fell that night. It was still uncertain yesterday when the broken bridge will be repaired, because of unpredictable weather conditions and because it was not known what further damage might be caused.

Fifteen families living on a delta island at the mouth of the San Juan River have been stranded from Port Renfrew since the bridge was washed out on Christmas Eve.

Navy High On List Of Donors

More than 17,000 plates of blood have been donated by the Navy's Pacific Command since the start of Red Cross clinics in February, 1947.

Last year they donated 1,423 pints. Today they are giving more at Ventura gymnasium in HNC Dockyard.

Over the years a total of 20 have given blood 20 or more times. Each donor gives three-quarters of a pint.

Juveniles Held In Lumber Theft

A pair of juveniles was taken into custody last night after city police found a private car loaded with lumber in Doman's Lumber Yard, 285 Bay Street.

Const. Norman Hansen parked his motorcycle a short distance from the scene and customers wouldn't get Channel 8 if it weren't for our cable."

As Earth Revolves Pendulum To Swing In Building

A metal ball at the end of a length of piano wire will be seen in the new science lecture theatre at the University of Victoria as constant proof that the world turns.

The device will be seen in the foyer of the $400,000 building, tenders for which will be called this weekend and are returnable Jan. 28.

The lecture wing will consist of 156 and 180 students respectively and there will be 11 classrooms, a lounge and a demonstration room.

The steel wire and metal ball form part of Foucault's pendulum, a common scientific device which proves the earth's rotation without requiring extra-terrestrial support such as that of the stars or other heavenly bodies.

Foucault first erected his pendulum in the 1850s in the Pantheon in Paris.

At the end of a 200-foot-long wire he attached a cannon ball to make a pendulum. As this swung over a bed of sand it traced its path.

Because a pendulum tends to swing through its own plane without regard for the turning of the earth, instead of retracing the same straight line, a pattern similar to the spokes of a wheel radiating from the hub was formed.

In Paris, because of its geographical position, the pattern was traced completely in about 37 hours. Such a pendulum in Victoria would take about the same time.

At the north or south pole, such a pendulum would complete the spokes pattern in 24 hours.

At the equator, there would be no deviation.

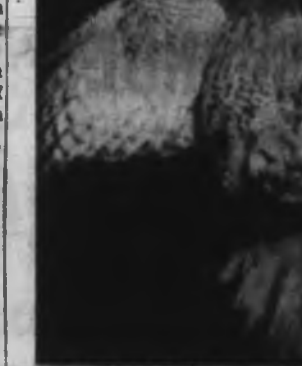

How the pattern will be shown at the university isn't known yet.

Sand might be used or sometimes plastic pegs are arranged so that as the pendulum swings it knocks them over and thus shows the pattern.

Because only 33 feet of wire will be used, the unassisted force of the pendulum's swing wouldn't last long enough to trace the whole pattern so another scientific device will be used.

An electro-magnet will probably be installed with a make and break circuit so that the pull of the magnet will draw the metal ball, then release it to swing back when the circuit is broken.

This way the pendulum will not lose its force and a constant swing will be maintained.

Down from Sky

Red-tailed hawk dropped out of the sky onto an East Sooke road yesterday and nearly became a traffic victim but ended up in Rudy's Pet Park. Driver Art Donaldson, above, 866 Old Esquimalt Road, put a stick down on the road, the hawk grasped it and was placed in the back of his car. —(Bud Kinsman)

Saves Time, Repetition

Police Start Using Code Plan

Greater Victoria police have started speaking a new language in their radio communications.

The international 10-code system, used now in most major cities throughout Canada and the United States for coding routine police messages, went into use New Year's Eve. Purpose of the system is to cut down time taken by police radio communications by using the code of number to designate often-used phrases.

The system was ordered by Chief J. F. Gregory, and the three other municipal police chiefs agreed to follow the same system.

"The system cuts out needless repetition and misunderstanding, and keeps messages short," Chief Gregory said.

He said under the new system a log will be kept of the location of cars which must temporarily go off the air, thus avoiding any confusion in the dispatching of cars.

"We are starting with only six code signals," said Chief Gregory, "and so far it is working out well. The number of modified messages will be increased as the need arises."

Purple Star Installs Officers

Mrs. B. Wright was installed as worthy mistress of Victoria Purple Star No. 104, Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association, at the annual election of officers and installation meeting.

Mrs. E. Bell of Victoria, provincial worthy grand mistress, conducted the installation ceremony.

Other officers elected were Mrs. L. Hamilton, deputy mistress, Mrs. C. Minnie, junior deputy mistress, Mrs. O. Bradshaw, secretary, Mrs. J. Johnson, financial secretary, Mrs. B. Blevins, treasurer, Mrs. B. Stanfield, chaplain, Mrs. I. Burt, guardian, Mrs. S. Gallagher, director of ceremonies.

Mrs. A. Keatley, Mrs. L. McKay and Mrs. F. Noel, were appointed auditors.

Mrs. E. Bousfield was installed as team captain and Mrs. F. Noel as pianist.

The retiring worthy mistress, Mrs. A. McFerran, was presented with a hand-script scroll and jewel.

During the past year donations were given to the Victoria Protestant Orphanage, Salvation Army, Christmas Seals, and Loyal Protestant Home in New Westminster and Orange Hall Home fund in Vancouver.

Husbands Are Kinder

PARIS (Reuters)—French husbands today treat their wives better than they did 20 years ago, says a survey on "women in society" published here by the national Centre for Scientific Research.

The survey shows both men and women agree that women are happier now than their mothers were, and that men have become more tolerant and less inclined to think of themselves as masters. Apparently, they give their wives more freedom and treat them more as companions and less as "slaves" than previously.

Women, on their part, are less frightened of their husbands and are getting more and more of an equal voice in social responsibilities.

Both sexes agree that women have more rights today than 20 years ago—but the women are less convinced of this than the men, some of whom think that women's rights have gone far enough.

IMPORTANT INFLUENCE

Both men and women are agreed that the increase in the number of women at work has been an important influence on equality between the sexes but they are less sure that working wives are a good thing.

Half of those asked feel that women should be free to have a career, but 87 per cent of the men and 77 per cent of the women think it is a bad thing for society as a whole. Seventy per cent of husbands, help their wives with the household chores—but only 46 per cent think they should.

PERSONAL MENTION

A number of residents of Eastern Canada have returned to spend another winter in Victoria and are once again staying at the Empress Hotel. Among these are Miss Miriam Green, E.B.A. and Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Carnegie, all of Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Saylor, Woodbridge, Ont.; Mr. W. F. Heward, Ottawa; Mrs. S. B. Clement and Miss L. Gray, Sarnia, Ont. Also in Victoria for an indefinite visit are Mr. and Mrs. R. Peters, Vernon, who are staying at the hotel.

Staff Holiday Party

A holiday party for the staff of the bureau of economics and statistics of the department of industrial development, trade and commerce, was held at the Lafayette Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Brian S. Ginnell during the holidays. Guest of honor was Mr. Rowland B. Green, until recently a staff member. Others present were Deputy Minister T. L. Sturges and Mrs. Sturges, Mr. Jack Meredith, assistant director of the bureau, and Mrs. Meredith; Mr. and Mrs. George Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Knight, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Featherstonhaugh, Mr. Harry Brown, Mr. Jack D'Amson, Miss Joyce Folbigg, Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bassett, Mr. Norris Martin, Miss Donna Burridge, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Law, Miss Merle Marshall; also Mr. and Mrs. Barry Wharf, formerly of Victoria and now of Edmonton.

In Kelowna for Skating

Miss Eve Lettice left Victoria New Year's Day to attend the B.C. division of the Figure Skating Championships being held this week at Kelowna. While in the Okanagan she will attend the skating association directors' meeting of British Columbia.

Celebrates 93rd Birthday

Mr. Matthew Wellburn of 1331 Grant Street was honored New Year's Day on the occasion of his 93rd birthday at a big family gathering in the Princess Louise Rooms at the Empress Hotel. Among the 50 guests were Mr. Wellburn's three sons, Gerald of Duncan, Tom and George of Victoria, all with their wives and families; and his three daughters, Mrs. C. F. (Molly) Foxall, Mrs. C. M. (Grace) Knight, and Mrs. J. M. (Kathleen) Richardson, all of Victoria. There are 16 grandchildren and 31 great-grandchildren in Mr. Wellburn's family.

Marries Scots Groom

Gail Anne Bebock became the bride of Henry Paul at a pretty wedding in Christ Church Cathedral. Rev. Canon S. J. Wickens officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Nixon, 1027 Victoria Avenue, and the son of Mr. Robert Paul of Glasgow, Scotland, and the late Mr. Paul.

The bride wore an exquisite floor-length gown en train, of nylon chiffon over tulle with scalloped neckline. A tulle of rhinestones and pearls caught her shoulder-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white feathered carnations.

Mrs. Nixon gave his daughter in marriage. Mrs. Jack Turner as matron of honor for her cousin, and Miss Joan Stallybrass, bridesmaid.

wore electric blue satin gowns with belted skirts. Their head-dresses were gold whistles and yellow chrysanthemums and white carnations were in their bouquets.

Mr. Kenneth Nordal, cousin of the groom, was best man, Mr. George Paul, groom's brother, and Mr. Robert Macdonald, bride's cousin, were ushers.

Mr. James Stewart proposed the toast to his niece at a reception in the War Amps Hall on Oak Bay Avenue.

For a honeymoon trip in Washington the bride changed to a double-knit pink suit and black poodle cloth coat. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strank of Vancouver.

Pork Best Meat Buy Until Next Summer

OTTAWA (CP)—Pork should be the housewife's best meat buy in January, the federal agriculture department predicted Tuesday. Pork supplies are well above last year's levels and prices are "somewhat lower," says the department.

It is unlikely that pork prices will rise much above present levels until next summer. Shoppers are advised to look for specials in the last half of January.

Demand for roasts, steaks, stew and ground meats is expected to remain strong. Prices for high quality beef are expected to rise slightly, making pot roasts, stew and ground beef better buys than steaks and oven roasts.

A slight decrease in the price of chicken broilers may occur, while turkey prices are expected to remain steady with less.

Supplies of onions, cabbage and carrots are plentiful. Prices of these vegetables are lower in Eastern Canada, while in the West they are generally higher. A record production of apple juice and canned apple products is in prospect and apple juice continues to be a very good buy.

No decrease in the current price of eggs is predicted by the department.

Boiled Beef Recipes Vary

By PAUL FITZGERALD

Even the most sophisticated palates can enjoy a good honest boiled beef dinner. In point of fact almost every nation has a version of it and perhaps one reason for the popularity of this dish is the ease with which it can be prepared, and also the variations on the theme which can be applied. Here are two recipes that will make a cheap cut of beef a succulent and most appetizing dish.

BOILED BEEF (Six servings)

3 pounds lean first-cut brisket of beef, boiling water, 2 leeks, trimmed and washed well, 1 teaspoon thyme, 1 bay leaf, 1 carrot, scraped and left whole, 1 medium onion, peeled, 1 small stalk celery with leaves, 12 peppercorns, slightly bruised. Salt to taste.

Place the brisket of beef in a Dutch oven or heavy skillet in which it will fit compactly. Pour over it boiling water barely to cover.

Return to a boil and reduce the heat. Spoon off all the grease and scum. Add the remaining ingredients and cover lightly. Simmer three to four hours until the meat is tender.

VIENNESE BOILED BEEF (eight servings)

Three carrots, sliced; 2 onions, halved; 6 stalks celery, sliced; 1 tablespoon salt, 4 sprigs parsley, 1 bay leaf, 6 whole peppercorns; 4 whole allspice, 2 pounds chicken parts (feet, necks, backs, wings), water to cover, 1 large unpeeled onion, 4 pounds beef brisket.

Place the vegetables, seasonings and chicken parts in a large covered saucepan, cover with water and simmer two hours. Meanwhile, bake the unpeeled onion in a preheated moderate oven (350°F) 30 minutes.

Place the beef in a Dutch oven or heavy kettle and strain the vegetable-chicken stock over it. Add more water if necessary to cover the meat. Add the baked onion, cover and simmer about three hours.

Horseradish sauce is a wonderful complement to boiled beef and, of course, good boiled potatoes will be welcome. It always seems a good idea to serve potatoes when you have a dish with a good gravy. Bon Appetit!

Thieves' Loot—$1,400

Thieves stole $1,400 worth of goods from a Metchoin home overnight Tuesday when they made off with cameras, photographic equipment, a transistor radio and a coin collection, Colwood RCMP reported yesterday.

They gained entry to the home of Wilfred Gibson, 3183 Metchoin Road, by forcing a door, police said.

Less successful thieves entered four stores at 1920 Oak Bay Avenue overnight Wednesday, but escaped with only about $24 in silver. Oak Bay Building Supply lost $22 in silver from a cash drawer, and Hill-Tout Decorator Arts lost $2 in silver.

Dunn Electric Co. and Capital City Roofing were entered in the same raid, but no money was there to be stolen.

VESTA CLUB

Two cigarette machines were raided by thieves overnight Wednesday—one in the legislative building cafeteria, the other at the Vesta Club, 925 Government. An unknown amount of cash and cigarettes was taken in each raid.

Foreign coins valued at $60 were stolen from the home of Nick Lammie, 68 Moss, recently, police said yesterday. It is not known how entry to the house was gained.

Belgian Doctors, Dentists Strike Against New Law

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Dentists in Liege and Luxembourg started striking Thursday in a preamble to a possible Belgium-wide strike of doctors and dentists opposed to a new government health law.

Under the new law, which came into force Jan. 1, the state has assumed responsibility for the treatment of poliomyelitis, tuberculosis, cancer and mental diseases.

Most of Belgium's doctors and dentists reject the new law on the grounds it will lead to complete nationalization. Some 1,800 doctors have demanded they be omitted temporarily from the register of their official association in Liege, which presumably would remove them from active practice.

Garden Notes

Plant Prima Donna

By M. V. CHESTNUT, FRHS

Continuing our series on the care and feeding of Christmas gift houseplants, I think today we will take up the culture of probably the most beautiful and certainly the most expensive of the presentation plants, the Azalea.

Most of the potted houseplant Azaleas sold during the Christmas season started life as alpine in Belgium or Holland and were shipped to the country to be grown on to the flowering stage by local greenhouse operators.

In nature, this plant is a long-lived dwarf evergreen shrub, and as such, it should be capable of giving years of enjoyment, but only too often the lovely thing has become a leafless wreck and is headed for the ashcan by the end of January. The most common cause of its early demise is watering with the wrong kind of water.

You see, the Azalea has a marked dislike for chlorine, fluorine, lime and other alkaline mineral salts found in most water supplies. These salts do little harm in outdoor gardening, but in a potted plant they build up in the soil to a point where the concentration becomes injurious to the health of the plant. The only really safe way with this beautiful flowering house plant shrub is to water only with rainwater, melted snow or defrostings from an electric refrigerator.

Frequency of watering is a bit of a problem too, for the delicate root hairs will die in a matter of hours if the peaty compost in the pot is allowed to become bone dry; at the same time, these same fine root hairs will rot off under constant saturation and persistent soggy. Aim at keeping the soil evenly and just moderately moist at all times, and don't hesitate to stick your finger deep into the peat mixture to check up on the moisture below the surface.

The plant likes sunshine in winter and shade in summer, and prefers a temperature a little on the cool side at this season of the year, 55 to 60 degrees, with complete freedom from sudden drafts and cold chills, but with adequate ventilation and plenty of fresh air.

Some feeding is necessary, as Azalea potting soil is almost pure peat, containing very little in the way of nutrients. A good plan is to give a very small dose of fertilizer in its water once a week, alternating between straight ammonium sulphate and a proprietary houseplant food such as Hyponex, RX-15, Atlas Flash Emulsion or liquid seaweed plant food.

In each feeding, use a fraction less than half a teaspoonful per plant of water. Always err on the side of too little rather than too much, and always apply to the top of the soil rather than pouring the fertilizer solution into the saucer under the pot.

In the spring, as soon as the weather has warmed up sufficiently, your Azalea should go outdoors for the summer. Pick a lightly shaded spot—the north or northeast side of the house is a good place—and sink the pot up to its rim in a small pit filled with gravel or peat. Keep up the regular watering and feeding all summer—it is safe to use tap water while the plant is outdoors—and freshen up the leaves frequently with a fine mist of plain water. To maintain a pleasing shape and compact size, keep nipping off the tips of new branch growth with a sharp thumbnail.

Bring your plant indoors in the fall when the night temperature threatens to drop below 40 degrees. This will be the semi-dormant period in the life of your Azalea—just after it has been brought indoors—and it should be kept a little cooler and a little drier than normal.

The idea here is to give the plant a little rest in order to induce lots of bloom, and the trick is to juggle air temperature and soil moisture in such a way as to keep the plant alive and in full leaf but without permitting it to do any growing. A temperature between 45 and 50 is about right, but in a good light, and with only enough water to keep the leaves from falling. After four weeks of rest, it can be restored to normal temperatures and watering.

JOHN CROSBY Compares School Products

Originality Vs. Conformity

LONDON—I was talking to an Old Boy the other day who, like Old Boys the world over, was appalled at what was happening to the Old School. His Old School is one of the newer ones—Westminster, founded in 1561. In England, that's yesterday. (Eton was founded in 1440, Winchester in 1384, St. Paul's in 1509.)

"Haven't been back in years," said the Old Boy. "First thing I noticed—the clothes. No top hats. The boys wear grey flannel suits like Madison Avenue. But that was only the beginning. Next I'd found out, canines are against the rules. But the worst thing of all—" the Old Boy shuddered from head to foot—"sports are no longer compulsory. Instead of going to the playing fields, a boy can spend the afternoon in a coffee bar, just talking. How are we going to win the next war?"

This is what is known as reform—something devoutly wished by all novelists from Tom Brown's Schooldays to The 4th of June, last year's sensation about Eton. Naturally, the Old Boy is appalled. He had been through it and he damn well thinks the other lads ought to go through it too.

As an old Etonian, I deplored the dropping of compulsory Latin at Eton—largely, I suppose, because I'd had it thrust down my throat, and how come the other kids get off scot-free. Damned outrage!

No Old Boy who for six years had to go out every afternoon and wallow in the icy mud is going to take kindly to the sight of a New Boy's being allowed to spend his afternoons warm and dry in a coffee house.

As Chesterton said: "The schools aren't for the sons of gentlemen, they're for the fathers of gentlemen."

At the risk of outraging all the liberals in education, I must say the jury is still out in this matter. We'll have to wait for the next generation of Englishman—or maybe the next six generations—to see if the thing works. (And the liberalization at Westminster is by no means the rule among schools. At Eton, the tops hats, the whippings, and the playing fields are still right in there.)

Last week, Peter Ustinov, an Old Boy from Westminster, said, "In retrospect, I'd say what I've said before

—it's a joke, but there's an element of truth in it—that English education is the best in the world if you can survive it."

Survival is what England has always been very good at and the ability to survive is what gives the grown-up Englishman one part of his special quality. (Darwin—"survival of the fittest" and all that—was an Englishman.)

The English public school (or private school, as we call it in North America) demands a lot of its children and gets it. After all, it was from Westminster that Peter Ustinov wears he got a report sent to his mother which read: "He shows great originality which must be curbed at all costs."

But the point is: it wasn't. Ustinov has gone on showing great originality—spouting plays, books, records, performances of acting—and my guess is that one reason he is so irrepressible is because Westminster tried to curb his originality at all costs.

Meanwhile, in America, which spawned John Dewey and progressive education and, God knows, still has the most permissive education anywhere on earth, where at college you are allowed to take Basket Weaving V and Appreciation of Needlepoint III and Fris Association I—out of all this has come a nation renowned (if that's quite the word for it) for its conformity.

These public schools which try to curb originality at all costs have on the contrary produced some of the most original minds and the most free-wheeling eccentrics in the world.

With all its Eton collar and frock-coat snobbery and whippings and enforced playing fields, Eton has produced such original minds as George Orwell, Lord Keynes, Aldous Huxley, Julian Huxley, and Lord knows how many others.

The oldest of English public schools, Winchester, produced Anthony Asquith, Arnold Toynbee, and Hugh Gaitskell.

We'll have to wait a while to see if the new permissive schools will produce any original thinkers like these.

Laurence Harvey's Time of the Barracudas play has been completely rewritten and goes into rehearsal again as soon as he finishes his current film at Metro. But not with Elaine Strick. Neither can abide the other. The girl most likely to be signed in British actress Ann Bagnor, who starred on stage in The Boy Friend and who took over for Julie Andrews on Broadway in My Fair Lady.

Barry Kessel is putting his Longest Day winner into general release on June 6, the anniversary of D-Day.

How to make money by really trying: George Hamilton told me with great pride and a grin that he has made $2,000 during the past four years by turning in his studio-paid first-class tickets to Europe and travelling tourist. "I pocket the rebate," said George. . . Someone was telling George that his film The Victors is on the cynical side. To which young Hamilton replied, "A cynic is an idealist turned inside out."

June Haver is resting after the gruelling job of directing her Marathon 30 play with music. What a fantastically good performance by Julie Harris in the role of Miss Haver. I found the show exciting.

No wonder Miss Gaynor turns her pretty back on most picture offers! The Flamingo in Vegas will pay her $36,000 a week for four weeks in March, with a little less at Harrah's in Tahoe. To earn this kind of money in night clubs, stars of the Miss Calibre invest something like $50,000 in their acts. Oh, yes, there are a couple of picture offers for Miss Haver for 1964, and she will try to sandwich them in between her nitery travels.

"What Peter says about Paul tells you more about Peter than about Paul."

That was this man's way of reacting to those whose gossip assailed his ears.

He was a good man. "But I am always afraid of being so good," he would say, "that I might become a menace."

"A menace?" we asked in amazement. "Yes, a menace. You see, too many good people teach themselves to believe that all right with the world, and they couldn't possibly be the cause of what might go wrong anyway. They have always someone else handy to blame."

"Whenever anybody comes to me and says: 'Did you hear what everybody's saying about so and so,' I answer him with my own question. 'Who is saying it?' I ask. 'Everybody, or just you?'"

"Most gossips are such frightened little cowards. They try to sell as unadulterated truth what in fact are only their own small personal prejudices."

"Habitual gossipers are a dime a dozen. They take over the conversation at dinner tables, card tables and assorted parties. Wherever there is small talk, the gossip is in the saddle."

"And because most of us, these days, have very little to say, we begin to talk about people rather than to people. But really, it's not the gossip who is to blame."

"Who is?" we asked.

"It's the fellow who is willing to listen to the nonsense. He's the one who actually commits the gravest error. That's what I mean by the 'menace' of good people. They never say a bad word about anybody, but they encourage others to do so when they don't stop them."

What we say about people may not only destroy them, but can destroy us in the process.

The witch-hunts of Salem, Massachusetts, are an eloquent reminder of how much our lives depend upon the truth of what we say. There, in Pilgrim America, an entire community was on the verge of self-destruction because it accepted as fact the gossip of fools and children.

What started as a minor illness became an epidemic.

There can be no family life, no economy, no political freedom, no international harmony without confidence. And there is no confidence that is not firmly based upon truth and the reverence of truth.

Some day truth catches up with slander, but sometimes it is too late: hope may be lost, lives destroyed, freedom defeated.

Good families and good communities stand by Paul until they're certain of Peter. If they let Peter wag his tongue easily, what Peter says about Paul may one day destroy them, too.

Plant Prima Donna

By M. V. CHESTNUT, FRES

Continuing our series on the care and feeding of Christmas gift houseplants, I think today we will take up the culture of probably the most beautiful and certainly the most expensive of the presentation plants, the Azalea.

Most of the potted houseplant Azaleas sold during the Christmas season started life as slips in Belgium or Holland and were shipped to this country to be grown on to the flowering stage by local greenhouse operators.

In nature, this plant is a long-lived dwarf evergreen shrub, and as such, it should be capable of giving years of enjoyment, but only too often the lovely thing has become a leafless wreck and is headed for the ashcan by the end of January. The most common cause of its early demise is watering with the wrong kind of water.

You see, the Azalea has a marked dislike for chlorine, fluorine, lime and other alkaline mineral salts found in most water supplies. These salts do little harm in outdoor gardening, but in a potted plant they build up in the soil to a point where the concentration becomes injurious to the health of the plant. The only really safe way with this beautiful flowering houseplant shrub is to water only with rainwater, melted snow or dechlorinated water from an electric refrigerator.

Frequency of watering is a bit of a problem too, for the delicate root hairs will die in a matter of hours if the peaty compost in the pot is allowed to become bone dry; at the same time, these same fine root hairs will rot off under constant saturation and persistent soggy soil. Aim at keeping the soil evenly and just moderately moist at all times, and don't hesitate to stick your finger deep into the peat mixture to check up on the moisture below the surface.

The plant likes sunshine in winter and shade in summer, and prefers a temperature a little on the cool side at this season of the year, 55 to 60 degrees, with complete freedom from sudden drafts and cold chills, but with adequate ventilation and plenty of fresh air.

Some feeding is necessary, as Azalea potting soil is almost pure peat, containing very little in the way of nutrients. A good plan is to give a very small dose of fertilizer in the water once a week, alternating between straight ammonium sulphate and a proprietary houseplant food such as Hyponex, RX-15, Atlas Fish Emulsion or liquid seaweed plant food.

In each feeding, use a fraction less than half a teaspoonful per pint of water. Always err on the side of too little rather than too much, and always apply to the top of the soil rather than pouring the fertilizer solution into the saucer under the pot.

In the spring, as soon as the weather has warmed up sufficiently, your Azalea should go outdoors for the summer. Pick a lightly shaded spot—the north or northeast side of the house is a good place—and sink the pot up to its rim in a small pit filled with gravel or peat. Keep up the regular watering and feeding all summer—it is safe to use tap water while the plant is outdoors—and freshen up the leaves frequently with a fine mist of plain water. To maintain a pleasing shape and compact size, keep nipping off the tips of new branch growth with a sharp thumb-nail.

Bring your plant indoors in the fall when the night temperature threatens to drop below 40 degrees. This will be the semi-dormant period in the life of your Azalea—just after it has been brought indoors—and it should be kept a little cooler and a little drier than normal.

The idea here is to give the plant a little rest in order to induce lots of bloom, and the trick is to juggle air temperature and soil moisture in such a way as to keep the plant alive and in full leaf but without permitting it to do any growing. A temperature between 45 and 50 is about right, but in a good light, and with only enough water to keep the leaves from falling. After four weeks of rest, it can be restored to normal temperatures and watering.

JOHN CROSBY Compares School Products

Originality Vs. Conformity

LONDON—I was talking to an Old Boy the other day who, like Old Boys the world over, was appalled at what was happening to the Old School. His Old School is one of the newer ones—Westminster, founded in 1561. In England, that's yesterday. (Eton was founded in 1440, Winchester in 1304, St. Paul's in 1509.)

"Haven't been back in years," said the Old Boy. "First thing I noticed—the clothes. No top hats. The boys wear grey flannel suits like Madison Avenue. But that was only the beginning. Next I'd found out, caravans are against the rules. But the worst thing of all—the Old Boy shuddered from head to foot—"sports are no longer compulsory. Instead of going to the playing fields, a boy can spend the afternoon in a coffee bar, just talking. How are we going to win the next war?"

This is what is known as reform—something devoutly wished by all novelists from Tom Brown's Schooldays to The 4th of June, last year's sensation about Eton. Naturally, the Old Boy is appalled. He had been through it and he damn well thinks the other lads ought to go through it too.

As an old Exonian, I deplored the dropping of compulsory Latin at Eton—largely, I suppose, because I'd had it thrust down my throat and how come the other kids get off scot-free. Damned outrage!

No Old Boy who for six years had to go out every afternoon and wallow in the icy mud is going to take kindly to the sight of a New Boy's being allowed to spend his afternoons warm and dry in a coffee house.

As Chesterton said: "The schools aren't for the sons of gentlemen, they're for the fathers of gentlemen."

At the risk of outraging all the liberals in education, I must say the jury is still out in this matter. We'll have to wait for the next generation of Englishman—or maybe the next six generations—to see if the thing works. (And the liberalization at Westminster is by no means the rule among schools. At Eton, the tape hats, the whippings, and the playing fields are still right in there.)

Last week, Peter Ustinov, an Old Boy from Westminster, said, "In retrospect, I'd say what I've said before—It's a joke, but there's an element of truth in it—that English education is the best in the world if you can survive it."

Survival is what England has always been very good at and the ability to survive is what gives the grown-up Englishman one part of his special quality. (Darwin—"survival of the fittest" and all that—was an Englishman.)

The English public school (or private school, as we call it in North America) demands a lot of its children and gets it. After all, it was from Westminster that Peter Ustinov wears he got a report sent to his mother which read: "He shows great originality which must be curbed at all costs."

But the point is: it wasn't Ustinov who has gone on showing great originality—spouting plays, books, records, performances of acting—and my guess is that one reason he is so irreplaceable is because Westminster tried to curb his originality at all costs.

Meanwhile, in America which spawned John Dewey and progressive education and, God knows, still has the most permissive education anywhere on earth, where at college you are allowed to take Basket Weaving V and Appreciation of Needlepoint III and Press Association I—out of all this has come a nation renowned (if that's quite the word for it) for its conformity.

Thug Snatches Purse

Victim Threatened

A youth threatened an elderly woman while he wrestled her purse from her in a struggle last night on Michigan Street.

Mrs. Mabel Christopherson, 222 Ontario Street, told police her assailant came from behind while she was walking home on Michigan Street and snatched for her purse, but she wouldn't let go.

He threw her to the ground, still struggling to get the purse away, and warned her not to scream or "she would get it."

She continued struggling but the purse handle snapped and the youth ran off down Michigan Street with the purse in his hands.

Mrs. Christopherson tried to give chase but was unable to keep the youth in sight.

Rotary Club's Luncheon Jazzed Up for Children

Fathers and grandfathers of the Victoria Rotary Club put on their annual children's luncheon at the Empress Hotel Ballroom yesterday, and the usual speeches were replaced by a gay party atmosphere.

Even the menu added to the enjoyment, with the customary fare replaced by hamburgers and french fries.

Guests at the party included children from as young as two years old, right up into the ten-age bracket.

The program included songs by the 35-member Junior Rotary Boys Choir, an acrobatic display by the Acrobettes, and the Grace Tuckey Puppets.

President Don Johanson crowned Kathy Patterson, 3, and Jimmy Lightbody, 2, two youngest guests, Rotary Princess and Prince for 1964.

Calendars a Little Dated But Dates Are Right

BREISTOW, Okla. (AP)—The business calendars sent out by Wendell List might seem a bit behind the times. The calendars were printed originally for 1908.

List, owner of an auto parts store, said the 1908 dates correspond to those of 1964. The pictures are of Gibson girls.

The dates are applicable again in 1992.

Birds, Olde England Get Revival Here

Victoria Tourist Bureau commissioner Alan Maclean indicated yesterday he will revive the olde England theme for tourism here.

Mr. Maclean is also bringing back the famous "Follow the Birds to Victoria" motto which was made popular by George I. Warren, during his reign as commissioner from 1922 to 1960.

The men are old friends and met yesterday during a brief ceremony at the tourist bureau office on Government Street.

PRESENTS SEAGULL. Bureau president G. Conway Parrott handed Mr. Warren a three-foot-wide seagull made out of hardboard, as a gesture symbolizing the fact the seagulls are back in the limelight again.

Mr. Maclean said he has to polish up his ideas before he puts them into action "but the overall picture is olde England, and a welcome door in '64 to Victoria and Vancouver Island."

DeMolay Claims Monopoly Record

Members of the Order of DeMolay are laying claim to a world record after playing monopoly day and night for 144 hours.

This beats by 12 hours the previous record for marathon monopoly playing held by a West Virginia fraternity. The boys are now going to send proof to Guinness Book of Records and DeMolay headquarters in Kansas City to claim the record.

About 30 members of the Victoria, Goldstream, Oak Bay and Signal Hill chapters took part, playing in shifts.

Victoria Chapter was the winner of the game which ended at noon New Year's Day.

The Victoria chapter had $410,000 (monopoly money) in total assets.

NO ONE BANKRUPT. Each chapter started out with $1,500 to invest and no chapter went bankrupt during the marathon.

Although rather weary of the game and marathons, the boys have already planned a marathon car wash for the Easter holidays.

All money from the proposed car wash will go to charity.

Frostbiters Compete For Trophies

Ideal sailing conditions were enjoyed New Year's Day by frostbiters when six Sabots and 10 Davidson dinghies competed for the three New Year's Day trophies.

Dr. George Houston won the men's Davidson race, the first time he has emerged winner of a race.

Mrs. Shirley Jefferson won the ladies' Sabot race and David Anstey the men's.

Winners of the series races to date follow with (1) indicating junior.

November, Davidsons, Ned Ashe, Jim Davis, Humphrey Golly; Sabots, Chris Anstey (1); Gail Sanderson (1), Geoff Arndt (1).

December series, Davidsons, Ned Ashe, Dick James, Jim Davis; Sabots, Chris Anstey (1), Peter Young; tied for third were Shirley Jefferson and Geoff Arndt (1).

Winners of pennant races from mid-October to date are, Davidsons, Ned Ashe, eight; John Todd and Jim Davis, three each; Bill Leach, two.

Sabots, Geoff Arndt (1), eight; Peter Young, Robin Boyd (1) and Geoff Anstey (1), four each, and Shirley Jefferson, two.

Batten Hatches Word to West

By CANADIAN PRESS

Winter weather will continue to play havoc in most areas of Canada today, but a two-week mild trend is expected to remain in the relatively snow-free southern areas of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

More snow and colder weather was forecast Thursday for the storm-bound Maritimes while west coast residents were told to batten down the hatches against rain and gales.

A New Year's Day storm which dumped from six to 26 inches of snow in southern Ontario moved through Quebec causing traffic tie-ups and cancelling flights.

Light snowflurries and some freezing rain from Quebec eastward was forecast for today and highway crews were expected to be out in full force. Highways in northern New Brunswick were almost impassable Thursday.

Winnipeg and southern Manitoba had a coating of ice added to a generous snow fall, resulting in 22 cars and three buses in a ditch on a one-mile stretch of highway near Winnipeg. A full-scale sanding operation on Manitoba highways may be interrupted by more light snowflurries today.

In British Columbia, a series of storms is piling into the coast from the Pacific, bringing rain and gales. Sunshine and warm temperatures were forecast for the interior of B.C.

CHICAGO (AP)—A January thaw brought widespread relief Thursday from a blustery storm that heaped ice and record snow falls on large areas of the southern and eastern U.S.

Sunny skies and rising temperatures were the rule in most sections of the country. By noon Thursday, freezing temperatures were confined to the far northeast and northern Rockies.

Generally fair skies and a warming trend were forecast for today for the area from the southern plains eastward to the Atlantic and northward over the Great Lakes region.

The snow cover in the south that ranged to 16 inches in depth in Alabama and Tennessee shrunk under bright sunshine and turned to slush.

First snow in several years fell in Jerusalem early this week. Scene, near Damascus Gate, is where Pope

Paul VI will pass during his pilgrimage to the Holy Land. (AP Photo-fax)

4,000 Years Come Alive

Pontiff Renews History's Path

By FRANCIS O'NEER from Jerusalem

Four thousand years of history will come splendidly alive when Pope Paul VI arrives in Jerusalem tomorrow on his unprecedented pilgrimage.

Abraham, the nomad, drove his sheep this way to Hebron. Samuel the Prophet went into these hills to find David who lived, loved, fought and prayed in this region.

Rehoboam, the unhappy last ruler of the once-mighty united Hebrew kingdom, roamed here searching for defensible hilltops. Mary and Joseph moved humbly here to be at Bethlehem for the census of the Roman Caesar Augustus.

And in these mountains Jesus was born, grew to manhood, preached, healed and suffered, was crucified and resurrected.

In essence the pope's journey will differ little from the pilgrimages of the hundreds of millions who converged upon this land in the course of 19 centuries.

Like them, the pope will climb the steep path of Jerusalem's Via Dolorosa, the course Jesus took, carrying His cross, on the sorrowful journey to Golgotha.

The pope will pray at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the shrine considered to symbolize the heart of Christendom. He will walk amid the olive trees of the Garden of Gethsemane, where Jesus retired for prayer before his arrest and delivery to the Romans.

The pope will make his pilgrimage to Nazareth, today a busy, mostly Arab-inhabited townlet in northern Israel, where the Archangel Gabriel announced to Mary that she was to become the mother to Christ.

Paul VI will walk along the shores of the turquoise Sea of Galilee, where the Sermon on the Mount, the core of Christian morality, was first delivered.

He will once more return to Jerusalem and pray at the site of the Last Supper on Mount Zion. And go to the town of Bethlehem to pray at the Church of the Nativity, and kneel before the Grotto where Jesus was born in a manger. All this like any other pilgrim.

But in its significance the pilgrimage of Paul VI stands out as a unique event. Not only because the pope is the spiritual head of 500,000,000 Catholics, but also because Paul VI will be the first pontiff to return to the source of Christianity since the first pope, Peter the Apostle, a fisherman from the Sea of Galilee, went to Rome to lay the foundation of the Catholic Church some 1,912 years ago.

Romans and ancient Israelites, Byzantines and Arabs, Saracens and Crusaders, Maronites and Seljuks, Turks and British followed each other here, confident and powerful, and apparently unaware of the transience of their authority.

Kings and princes, patriarchs and prelates, presidents and humble people came on pilgrimage to this land, but none of the 263 successors to Peter—until Paul VI.

Two heads of state—King Hussein of Jordan and President Zaiman Shauar Shauar of Israel—will separately welcome the pope when he enters

Pope, Aides Hold Retreat

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI and 30 Vatican aides who will fly with him to the Holy Land joined Thursday night in a spiritual retreat to pray for a successful pilgrimage. The aides included a newly-listed Christian unity expert.

The group spent two hours in prayer and meditation led by the Rev. Giulio Bevilacqua, the Roman Catholic pontiff's personal confessor.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Jan J. Willebrands, a Dutch prelate who is secretary of the Vatican's Christian Union Secretariat, was added to the papal party in an official list released Thursday.

Msgr. Willebrands was instrumental in inviting Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox observers to the Vatican ecumenical council.

Meanwhile, streets have been paved, buildings white-washed, roads widened, reception committees formed in about a score of localities on both sides of the border in anticipation of the visit. Though Jordan is a Moslem country, and Israel Jewish, no criticism has been heard at the use of substantial public funds for preparing for the brief visit of the pope.

This near-unanimity in welcoming Paul VI is not surprising. Not only have he and his immediate predecessor, the late John XXIII, succeeded in winning goodwill among non-Catholic peoples around the globe, but Jews and Arabs are both history-conscious peoples with a great respect for ancient roots.

Although the visit of the pope is unlikely to heal the breach between the descendants of Isaac (the Jews) and the descendants of his half-brother Ishmael (the Arabs), it will at least unite them for a short historic moment in a tribute to the pontiff, himself deriving his spiritual lineage from this soil.

NO POLITICAL LINK
Though Pope Paul is to tour holy places of both Jordan and Israel on his three-day pilgrimage, the king said he believes there is no political implication and "I can hardly see how (Arab-Israeli) relations could improve."

NO CHANGE SEEN
Hussein saw no possibility, however, that the Roman Catholic pontiff's visit could improve relations between Arab nations

Moslem King Hussein:

'All Jordan Awaits Pope's Pilgrimage'

JERUSALEM, Jordan Sector (AP)—King Hussein I said Thursday all Jordan awaits the Holy Land pilgrimage of Pope Paul VI with warmth, affection and enthusiasm and he hopes it will herald a new era in relations between Moslems and Christians.

"It is my earnest hope that eminent spiritual leaders of our two great faiths will take concrete steps with a view toward achieving this blessed, historic objective," the 27-year-old Moslem monarch held a crowded press conference.

Hussein saw no possibility, however, that the Roman Catholic pontiff's visit could improve relations between Arab nations

Britain in Storm's Grip Year Ago Yesterday

LONDON (UPI) — A year ago yesterday, Britain was suffering its worst winter storms in centuries.

Temperatures yesterday were in the 50's, outdoor safes and tennis courts were crowded and the mild weather was expected to last several more days.

Riot over Mummers Averted Pray for Snow, Get It

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Religious leaders said yesterday they prayed for snow, sleet and rain on New Year's Day to halt the annual Mummers parade because they feared blackface marchers would clash with angry Negroes. Their prayers were answered.

The protesters met yesterday to discuss a solution to the "moral problem" of blackface marchers in the parade, which was rescheduled for Saturday.

Negroes warned they would blockade the marchers with "human bodies" if any of the participants showed up in burnt cork and grease paint. Police cancelled all leaves and put the entire force on the alert.

Red Fugitive

Important Defector Living in Canada

LONDON (CP) — Anatoli Dolnytsin, one of the most important fugitives from Soviet Russia, is reported to be living in Canada.

An announcement Thursday night said he has left Britain to start a new life under a different name in a Commonwealth country. Official sources said the country is Canada.

The Daily Telegraph says he went to Canada some weeks ago "with his appearance altered."

Gouzenko and his family are living under assumed identities in a small Ontario town.

Dolnytsin is regarded as one of the most important Soviet citizens to defect to the West. His information played a part in the arrest of William Vassall, 35-year-old British Admiralty clerk who was imprisoned on charges of spying for Moscow.

Dolnytsin also tipped off British security to the fact that there was a "third man" in the case of British diplomat Guy Burgess, who died last year, and Donald Maclean, Burgess and Maclean quit the West for Russia in May, 1951.

Dolnytsin did not know British journalist and former foreign office employee Kim Philby, who escaped to Russia when the net began to close round him.

Dolnytsin has been in Britain about a year. He defected two years ago.

"He is the unknown man who has probably given the West the greatest advantage in the espionage war since the defection in Canada of Gouzenko," says the Daily Telegraph.

In Ottawa, officials of the RCMP and the external affairs department said they have no knowledge that Dolnytsin is in Canada.

Viet Nam Situation 'Dangerous'

SAIGON (UPI) — Junta chairman Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh yesterday told the opening session of the newly-created council of notables that South Viet Nam faces a "grave and dangerous" situation which must be met with rapid and strong action.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Gen. Paul D. Harkins, U.S. commander-in-chief here, were among the invited dignitaries in the main conference hall of the Dien Hong palace in Saigon for Minh's address to the council.

Minh made no reference to President Johnson's New Year message of support.

Louie the Dip Dies Dead Broke at 68

CLEVELAND (AP) — Louis Finkelstein — Louie the Dip — a police officer throughout the United States — is dead at 68. He died broke.

His body was found in his automobile Wednesday on Cleveland's east side. Doctors said he died of a heart attack.

For 30 years, Finkelstein pursued his career as a pack-pusher. He showed down about 30 years ago when arthritis stiffened his nimble fingers. In 1930, he applied for relief. He died penniless.

Finkelstein was arrested 120 times and served more than 10 years in prisons as the result of 30 sentences.

In 1933, he picked the pocket of the police chief of suburban Parma. Another time he dipped into the pocket of a ball bondswoman, and each he stole the wallet of a reporter covering one of his trials.

Finkelstein touched off an investigation once at the city workhouse, where he was an inmate. It was disclosed that he was "bush" of the workhouse, arranging seats, pies and gambling games for prisoners with money.

He escaped and officers found him at a revival meeting in New York state. Five wallets were in his pockets.

School of 1,500 Hit by Hepatitis

MOOSE JAW (CP) — An immunization program has been started at the Saskatchewan Training School here to curb an outbreak of infectious hepatitis that has isolated seven persons.

School superintendent Dr. A. J. Beddie said Thursday the "larger-than-usual" outbreak involves seven patients and staff members who have been isolated from other persons.

There are more than 1,500 persons at the school.

Immunization was started to ensure persons in contact with those affected would not be infected.

Regional health officer Dr. Raymond Miller said there was no cause for alarm.

"If there were to be seven cases in any place other than a large, closely-knit institution, we would consider it a serious outbreak. This would mean there was wider contact."

Dr. Beddie said the cases at the training school are not considered serious.

First Studebaker Off Line

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) — The first Canadian-built Studebaker car destined for delivery and sale in the United States rolled off the assembly line of Studebaker's Canadian plant here yesterday.

The automobile, a six-cylinder, four-door Commander sedan, was slated for delivery in Laconia, N.H.

At the end of the assembly line the auto rolled beneath a newly-painted sign which read: "Now—Studebaker of Canada builds for the world. Let quality be your trademark."

Studebaker recently announced the transfer of its manufacturing operations from South Bend, Ind., to the smaller, more efficient plant at Hamilton where it has been producing cars for the Canadian market since 1947.

The Canadian subsidiary has been part of the Studebaker corporate organization since 1910.

The car scheduled for delivery in New Hampshire is to be the first of many Hamilton-built Studebakers which will be shipped across the border into the U.S. market.

Its departure preceded the first two truckaway rigs which left Hamilton for a border crossing point at Windsor, Ont.

Nursing Home Fire Kills Three of 17

COLUMBIA, Miss. (UPI) — A furnace that was in operation to ward off the unusually cold, 20-degree temperatures.

Most of the patients—ranging in age from 60 to 82—were veterans of the First World War. Only one woman patient, Mrs. Thelma Kelly, who is partially blind, resided at the home.

The fire apparently started from a newly-installed floor furnace.

Tops Poll

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota has topped a U.S. wide poll of Democratic county chairmen as the party's best choice for the vice-presidential nomination in the 1964 U.S. elections.

Attorney General Robert Kennedy was a close second in the poll, taken by The Associated Press.

Commenting on the poll, Humphrey said "It is, of course an honor to be associated with President Johnson, and it would be a singular honor to be with him on the Democratic ticket."

Convicts Killed
By Molten Tar

PRATTVILLE, Ala., (UPI)—An out of control produce truck careened into a prison work gang near here Thursday, knocking over a pot of molten tar which burned four convicts to death. The truck driver also was killed.

Police said the four convicts were covered with the hot tar and the truck driver died when he was trapped inside his burning vehicle.

Police said one other prisoner and a guard were injured. Witnesses said the truck was travelling at a high rate of speed when a car in front of it swerved suddenly into another lane of traffic.

TRUCK SKIDDED
The truck overturned and skidded on its side into the gang of eight prisoners, hitting a "tar pot" and hurling the molten tar over the startled road workers.

Almost simultaneously from Moscow, Washington, Warsaw and London yesterday came overtures inviting all nations to renounce the use of force in international disputes and take concrete steps to preserve peace in the world.

In a 20-page letter to President Johnson, Premier Khrushchev asked the U.S. to join Russia in signing a formal declaration condemning the use of force in territorial disputes.

Later, in Washington, Secretary of State Dean Rusk declared peace remained the most urgent business of mankind and invited the Soviets to break new ground in settling major east-west problems.

Warsaw, announcing the arrival of Premier Khrushchev on a surprise unofficial visit, was reported to be preparing a new Kremlin-backed move aimed at easing tensions in central Europe.

ARMS 'FREEZE'

Shortly before the Russian leader's arrival, diplomatic observers said the plan would include the "freezing" of nuclear armaments in the area at present levels.

There were rumors the Soviet leader would move on to other eastern European bloc countries after his Polish visit for an exchange of views on Russia's ideological dispute with Communist China.

BRITAIN, TURKEY TOO

Copies of Khrushchev's letter were delivered to the U.S., the United Kingdom, Turkey and others, but the contents were not released.

In Ankara, Turkish Foreign Minister Feridun Cemal told reporters Khrushchev had sent a message concerning "an international agreement to solve disputes in peaceful ways."

In Washington, State Secretary Dean Rusk told a press conference the question of peaceful settlement of territorial disputes was, in general, the subject matter of the message delivered to President Johnson through the state department by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

Government spokesmen in London said that it would be up to the Soviet Union to determine whether the note's contents would be released.

MIXED PROSPECTS

Describing the world situation as being "in movement," Rusk said the prospects for peace during 1964 were mixed. He said the Western allies were undertaking an intensive review of the disarmament question and also discussing again the Berlin and German problems. This was being done to see whether there were any new proposals they might make to break the deadlock on these critical issues.

While expressing hope for progress toward peace, the secretary warned newsmen that some "highly dangerous situations" existed. He pinpointed southeast Asia in particular.

Lord Thomson of North Bay?

Long Has He Eyed Ermine

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Lord Thomson of North Bay, Toronto or North Bridge? These were among the guesses Thursday as speculation swirled about the newly-coroneted head of publisher Roy Thomson, the latest addition to the ranks of Britain's peers.

Thomson himself tossed out a hint that his surname might not figure in the title at all.

Another Canadian-born press lord, Lord Beaverbrook, picked up his handle from the New Brunswick community of Beaver Brook. The former Max Aitken was created a baron in 1917.

Thomson was elevated to the peerage in the New Year's honors list. He told a reporter he was not at all sure that Thomson would be part of the new name, which must be approved by Britain's College of Herald.

"In any event, I feel I have to consult my son Ken about the title. After all, he's going to have to live with it for a long time."

The 63-year-old publisher, who has said with customary frankness that he has had his eyes on the ermine for a long time, seems keenly aware of dynastic matters as he talks of his new honor.

A standard reply to questions is that "I'll have to talk to Ken about that." This applies particularly to questions about his citizenship. Canadian governments have tended to frown upon Canadian citizens receiving titles and decorations.

"His motives are dynastic," comments The Financial Times, punching home the point about Thomson's tendency to bring his son into all considerations arising from the barony.

The meaning and origin of the word baron are said by DeBrett's peerage to be shrouded in obscurity. It has been supposed to have meant a hired soldier, a free man or a man equal to any other man.

Beeper Back to Bug Verbose

After a year of forced retirement, the electronic "Big Brother" designed to watch over the provincial government's phone bill made its reappearance at 8:30 a.m. yesterday.

By 5 p.m. it had already created its normal quota of embarrassment, suspicion and loud guffaws. The device is connected to the provincial switchboard and makes an unnerving

"beep" at prescribed intervals in an effort to cut phone conversations to three minutes.

It took two public works officials a total of 16 minutes to explain to a reporter by telephone why the beeper was back.

Works Minister William Chant, who is sensitive to "beep" criticism, took 10 minutes and his deputy took 5 1/2.

The "beeps" crept back just a year after they had been discontinued on the order of a red-faced Mr. Chant.

He cut them off last January after a reporter telephoned to ask him to explain the Social Credit monetary theory.

At that time Mr. Chant warned to his subject and disallowed through 22 electronic eruptions for a total of 67 minutes.

The reporter failed to record the minister's views on Social Credit economics but he did write a story on the duration of the call.

Result: no more beeps—until yesterday.

The beeper had hardly emitted its first little beep yesterday before the fun started.

A caller from Government House thought the line had been tapped.

"You're not recording this?" he asked in alarm.

A short time later a news source outside the legislative buildings suddenly froze in mid-sentence and suggested a meeting with his caller instead of a phone conversation.

But the device really doesn't record conversations, public works officials assured everybody. It just encourages efficiency.

Mr. Chant said that from the time the beeper was silenced last January the government's phone bill—about $1,000,000 a year—had risen steadily and conversations were getting out of hand.

Phone costs have already exceeded the estimate and his department is going to have to dip into maintenance funds to keep the lines open.

A provincial social worker has charged that B.C.'s child welfare program is "sick, sick, sick" and she has fired off an angry four-page letter to Premier Bennett to tell him so.

On the one hand, she charges, help is being denied to the needy for lack of funds, while on the other funds are being squandered for lack of staff to administer them.

Author of the letter is Mrs. Bridget A. Moran, a Prince George mother of three and a part-time social worker since 1951.

COULDN'T FACE YEAR

She said in her letter she couldn't face the new year without writing it.

"I could not face my clients for yet another year without raising my voice to protest, for them, the service they are going to receive from me."

"I have no excuse except desperation for what follows."

COPIES DISTRIBUTED

She informed the premier, reported to be vacationing on Waikiki Beach, that copies of her letter were being sent to newspapers and to leaders of opposition political parties.

She said she dreaded to return to her desk after the Christmas holidays because she knew what she would find there.

"To my right as I sit down there is a stack of some 30 or 40 files marked 'visit urgent.'"

THREE OR FOUR MONTHS

Some have been there three or four months and the stack could involve up to 150 people.

"I would not like to hazard a guess as to when I will be able to visit these clients."

She said her case load varies from 205 to 220—far above the ideal level—and that the case load of another worker in her office is nearly 300.

GIRL DRUNK

Her anger on behalf of her clients has mounted year by year, she said, but the last straw was the case of a 13-year-old girl who was found drunk and nearly naked in the snow in temperatures 20 degrees below freezing.

She said the case opened when the child's mother came to her office to appeal for help.

VISIT-URGENT

"The appeal, naturally, was made in my office, since her file was one of those marked 'visit-urgent' that sits, day after day, in a growing stack."

The girl, she said, had a chronic habit of running away and the mother, in desperation, had moved to Prince George from 150 miles away to seek help for her. But the girl continued to run away.

ASSESSMENT NEEDED

"All my experience in the department told me that this girl should have been assessed by a competent team, and the right setting found for her so that her problems could be worked out."

"In fact, however, a competent team is available to us."

Missing Plane

Mystery Signals
Fan Hope

HONOLULU (AP)—Mysterious signals fanned hopes Thursday night that nine men aboard a missing four-engine military cargo plane that went down 750 miles west of Hawaii may still be alive.

Search plane crews said they have heard 3 O S signals at various times during the last few hours. However, they have not ascertained the source or location of the signals.

30 PLANES SEARCH

No trace of the C-124 Globemaster had been found by the 20 search planes in the area, according to the air force at Hickam Air Force Base at Honolulu.

The missing plane, carrying a crew of eight and a navy man accompanying the course of a sailor en route from Japan to the United States for burial, apparently ran out of fuel.

REFUELED AT WAKE

After a refueling stop at Wake Island—the military air transport service Globemaster continued its flight toward Honolulu and was due at Hickam at 1:30 a.m. Thursday morning.

The air force said distress signals were heard in Honolulu at 10:30 a.m. and apparently were sent by an automatic transmitter.

ROUND-ABOUT REPORT

Earlier a spokesman said the round-about report of the plane's plight had included the possibility of survivors. The report came from the Federal Aviation Agency control centre in Hawaii by way of a control centre at Fuchu, Japan.

Cyprus Agrees to London Talk

CP from Reuters-AP

NICOSIA — Cyprus agreed Thursday night to take part in a London conference aimed at solving the bitter dispute between the Greek and Turkish communities on the Mediterranean island.

The conference proposal was made by Britain, Greece and Turkey. These three powers will take part along with representatives of Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

The Cyprus government's agreement to the conference was announced as British Commonwealth secretary, Duncan

Sandys, flew back to Britain after his peace-making mission here.

It was learned here that the meeting in London will be held in late January. Sandys spent most of the day conferring with President Archbishop Makarios and representatives of the hostile factions.

But the British diplomat made no statement before leaving. The Cyprus government announcement said that after the opening session of the conference "a committee will be set up of representatives of Greek- and Turkish- Cypriots, under British chairmanship, to work

Car accidents took the lives of 20 people south of the Malahat during 1963, falling far short of 1962's record 30 deaths.

Half the accidents occurred in the city of Victoria, with six in Saanich and the rest in RCMP territory.

The year started badly, with two fatal accidents Jan. 1. The first was a two-car collision at the Theis Lake Underpass on the Trans-Canada Highway. A pedestrian was hit by a car at Bay and Richmond later the same day, and died three days later.

February saw two deaths: one a pedestrian struck by a car Feb. 9 near Sidney; the other a boy knocked from his bicycle on Admirals Road Feb. 28.

March was the worst month, with five people killed. The first was an elderly pedestrian who died 11 days after she was struck by a car at Cook and Oxford March 3.

Double fatalities accounted for the other four deaths in March. Two people died as the result of a car hitting a wall.

Lectures On Sex Ready Soon

Plans for Victoria schools to have illustrated lectures on sex are practically complete, according to John Gough, school superintendent.

The course consists of a 45-minute lecture and a short film, one for boys and one for girls.

The films will be shown to members of the clergy Monday and their opinions will be passed to trustees at the board meeting that evening.

When these lectures will be presented and in which schools will be decided later.

Saves Time, Repetition

Police Start Using Code Plan

Greater Victoria police have started speaking a new language in their radio communications.

The International 10-code system, used now in most major cities throughout Canada and the United States for coding routine police messages, went into use New Year's Eve.

Purpose of the system is to cut down time taken by police radio communications by using the code of number to designate often-used phrases.

The system was ordered for the Victoria police force by Chief J. F. Gregory, and the three other municipal police chiefs agreed to follow the same system.

"The system cuts out needless repetition and misunderstanding, and keeps messages short," Chief Gregory said.

He said under the new system a log will be kept of the location of cars which must temporarily go off the air, thus avoiding any confusion in the dispatching of cars.

"We are starting with only six code signals," said Chief Gregory, "and so far it is working out well. The number of coded messages will be increased as the need arises."

Most serious accident took place at about 11:30 p.m. New Year's Eve when a car driven by Joseph Birinyi, Port Alberni, with three passengers overturned during the heavy rainstorm at the intersection of Highway 19 and Hammond Drive. Passenger Mrs. Eva Sorenson of 410 Victoria Road was taken to Nanaimo Regional Hospital suffering from head and possible internal injuries. Her condition was reported Thursday to be satisfactory.

Duncan Turner, Nanaimo, and Leslie Russell, Chemainus, were involved in a collision which caused about $200 worth of damage but no injuries.

Andrew Wladynsky, 877 Nicol Street, reported that his car had been damaged to the tune of about $300 by an unknown hit-and-run driver.

Car accidents were at a minimum with only three reported.

"We are very pleased with the co-operation and good sense shown by Nanaimo citizens," said the chief. "I hope they keep it up all year."

Minnesotan Tops Poll

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota has topped a U.S. wide poll of Democratic county chairmen as the party's best choice for the vice-presidential nomination in the 1964 U.S. elections. Attorney General Robert Kennedy was a close second in the poll, taken by The Associated Press.

Convicts Killed By Molten Tar

PRATTVILLE, Ala., (UPI)—An out of control produce truck careened into a prison work gang near here Thursday, knocking over a pot of molten tar which burned four convicts to death. The truck driver also was killed.

Police said the four convicts were covered with the hot tar and the truck driver died when he was trapped inside his burning vehicle.

Police said one other prisoner and a guard were injured. Witnesses said the truck was travelling at a high rate of speed when a car in front of it swerved suddenly into another lane of traffic.

TRUCK SKIDDED

The truck overturned and skidded on its side into the gang of eight prisoners, hitting a "tar pot" and hurling the scalding tar over the startled road workers.

Almost simultaneously from Moscow, Washington, Warsaw and London yesterday came overtures inviting all nations to renounce the use of force in international disputes and take concrete steps to preserve peace in the world.

In a 20-page letter to President Johnson, Premier Khrushchev asked the U.S. to join Russia in signing a formal declaration condemning the use of force in territorial disputes.

Later, in Washington, Secretary of State Dean Rusk declared peace remained the most urgent business of mankind and invited the Soviets to break new ground in settling major east-west problems.

Warsaw, announcing the arrival of Premier Khrushchev on a surprise unofficial visit, was reported to be preparing a new Kremlin-backed move aimed at easing tensions in central Europe.

ARMS FREEZE

Shortly before the Russian leader's arrival, diplomatic observers said the plan would include the "freezing" of nuclear armaments in the area at present levels.

There were rumors the Soviet leader would move on to other eastern European bloc countries after his Polish visit for an exchange of views on Russia's ideological dispute with Communist China.

BRITAIN, TURKEY TOO

Copies of Khrushchev's letter were delivered to the U.S., the United Kingdom, Turkey and others, but the contents were not released.

In Ankara, Turkish Foreign Minister Feridun Cemal told reporters Khrushchev had sent a message concerning "an international agreement to solve disputes in peaceful ways."

In Washington, State Secretary Dean Rusk told a press conference the question of peaceful settlement of territorial disputes was, in general, the subject matter of the message delivered to President Johnson through the state department by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

Government spokesmen in London said that it would be up to the Soviet Union to determine whether the note's contents would be released.

MIXED PROSPECTS

Describing the world situation as being "in movement," Rusk said the prospects for peace during 1964 were mixed.

He said the Western allies were undertaking an intensive review of the disarmament question and also discussing again the Berlin and German problems. This was being done to see whether there were any new proposals they might make to break the deadlock on these critical issues.

While expressing hope for progress toward peace, the secretary warned newsmen that some "highly dangerous situations" existed. He pinpointed southeast Asia in particular.

State trooper A. O. Hamilton said all of the victims were apparently burned to death.

Long Has He Eyed Ermine

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Lord Thomson of North Bay, Toronto or North Bridge? These were among the guesses Thursday as speculation swirled about the newly-coroneted head of publisher Roy Thomson, the latest addition to the ranks of Britain's peers.

Thomson himself tossed out a hint that his surname might not figure in the title at all.

Another Canadian-born press lord, Lord Beaverbrook, picked up his handle from the New Brunswick community of Beaver Brook. The former Max Aitken was created a baron in 1917.

Thomson was elevated to the peerage in the New Year's honors list. He told a reporter he was not at all sure that Thomson would be part of the new name, which must be approved by Britain's College of Heralds.

"In any event, I feel I have to consult my son Ken about the title. After all, he's going to have to live with it for a long time."

The 63-year-old publisher, who has said with customary frankness that he has had his eyes on the ermine for a long time, seems keenly aware of dynastic matters as he talks of his new honor.

A standard reply to questions is that "I'll have to talk to Ken about that."

Cyprus Agrees to London Talk

Pause in Fighting but Situation Delicate

The conference proposal was made by Britain, Greece and Turkey. These three powers will take part along with representatives of Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

The Cyprus government's agreement to the conference was announced as British Commonwealth secretary, Duncan

Beeper Back to Bug Verbose

After a year of forced retirement, the electronic "Big Brother" designed to watch over the provincial government's phone bill made its reappearance at 8:30 a.m. yesterday.

By 5 p.m. it had already created its normal quota of embarrassment, suspicion and loud guffaws.

The device is connected to the provincial switchboard and makes an unnerving

"beep" at prescribed intervals in an effort to cut phone conversations to three minutes.

It took two public works officials a total of 16 minutes to explain to a reporter by telephone why the beeper was back.

Works Minister William Chant, who is sensitive to "beep" criticism, took 10 minutes and his deputy took 5 1/2.

The "beeps" crept back just a year after they had been discontinued on the order of a red-faced Mr. Chant.

He cut them off last January after a reporter telephoned to ask him to explain the Social Credit monetary theory.

At that time Mr. Chant warned to his subject and discouraged through 22 electronic eruptions for a total of 67 minutes.

The reporter failed to record the minister's views on Social Credit economics but he did write a story on the duration of the call.

Result: no more beeps—until yesterday.

The beeper had hardly emitted its first little beep yesterday before the fun started. A caller from Government House thought the line had been tapped.

"You're not recording this?" he asked in alarm.

A short time later a news source outside the legislative buildings suddenly froze in mid-sentence and suggested a meeting with his caller instead of a phone conversation.

But the device really doesn't record conversations, public works officials assured everybody. It just encourages efficiency.

Mr. Chant said that from the time the beeper was silenced last January the government's phone bill — about $1,000,000 a year — had risen steadily and conversations were getting out of hand.

Phone costs have already exceeded the estimate and his department is going to have to dip into maintenance funds to keep the lines open.

Worker Writes Premier

A provincial social worker has charged that B.C.'s child welfare program is "sick, sick, sick" and she has fired off an angry four-page letter to Premier Bennett to tell him so.

On the one hand, she charges, help is being denied to the needy for lack of funds, while on the other hand are being squandered for lack of staff to administer them.

Author of the letter is Mrs. Bridget A. Moran, a Prince George mother of three and a part-time social worker since 1951.

COULDN'T FACE YEAR

She said in her letter she couldn't face the new year without writing it.

"I could not face my clients for yet another year without raising my voice to protest, for them, the service they are going to receive from me.

"I have no excuse except desperation for what follows."

COPIES DISTRIBUTED

She informed the premier, reported to be vacationing on Waikiki Beach, that copies of her letter were being sent to newspapers and to leaders of opposition political parties.

She said she dreaded to return to her desk after the Christmas holidays because she knew what she would find there.

"To my right as I sit down there is a stack of some 10 or 40 files marked 'visit urgent.'"

THREE OR FOUR MONTHS

Some have been there three or four months and the stack could involve up to 150 people. "I would not like to hazard a guess as to when I will be able to visit these clients."

She said her case load varies from 205 to 220—far above the ideal level—and that the case load of another worker in her office is nearly 300.

GIEL DRUNK

Her anger on behalf of her clients has mounted year by year, she said, but the last straw was the case of a 13-year-old girl who was found drunk and nearly naked in the snow in temperatures 20 degrees below freezing.

She said the case opened when the child's mother came to her office to appeal for help.

VISIT-URGENT

"The appeal, naturally, was made in my office, since her file was one of those marked 'visit-urgent' that sits, day after day, in a growing stack."

The girl, she said, had a chronic habit of running away and the mother, in desperation, had moved to Prince George from 150 miles away to seek help for her. But the girl continued to run away.

ASSESSMENT NEEDED

"All my experience in the department told me that this girl should have been assessed by a competent team, and the right setting found for her so that her problems could be worked out."

"In fact, however, a competent team is available to us

Mystery Signals Fan Hope

HONOLULU (AP)—Mysterious signals fanned hopes Thursday night that nine men aboard a missing four-engine military cargo plane that went down 750 miles west of Hawaii may still be alive.

Search plane crews said they have heard S O S signals at various times during the last few hours. However, they have not ascertained the source or location of the signals.

30 PLANES SEARCH

No trace of the C-124 Globemaster had been found by the 20 search planes in the area, according to the air force at Hickam Air Force Base at Honolulu.

The missing plane, carrying a crew of eight and a navy man accompanying the corpse of a sailor en route from Japan to the United States for burial, apparently ran out of fuel.

REFUELLED AT WAKE

After a refuelling stop at Wake Island, the military air transport service Globemaster continued its flight toward Honolulu and was due at Hickam at 1:30 a.m. Thursday morning. The air force said distress signals were heard in Honolulu at 10:30 a.m. and apparently were sent by an automatic transmitter.

BOUND-ABOUT REPORT

Earlier a spokesman said the round — about report of the plane's plight had included the possibility of survivors. The report came from the Federal Aviation Agency control centre in Hawaii by way of a control centre at Fuchai, Japan.

Missiles From France

HALIFAX (CP)—Two hundred French-made anti-tank missiles are on the way for an army ammunition depot in Quebec. The SS1B anti-tank rockets, without warheads and in metal containers were loaded on a railway boxcar for transport to Ste. Therese, Que.
